PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle received hopeful reports from money markets Monday on his decision to keep the franc intact, and backed up his gamble by sending France's toughest shock police to block any outward flow of currency.

While stocks and the franc were moving up on the reopened Paris exchanges, and the franc firmed in Zurich, de Gaulle ordered squads of the black-capped Compagnie Republispe de Securite, France's elite police, to the nation's borders. They will help enforce a series of severe new exchange regulations.

Buffeted for two weeks in a storm of speculation, the franc reached its highest level since the May-June crisis. There was some upward movement on other money markets in Europe. This seemed to French officials to reflect confidence in de Gaulle's program for escaping devaluation by "taking hold of ourselves" at home.

Reaction from foreign capitalists, however, was still cautious with some bankers still maintaining restrictions on trading their francs. No one was willing to say that the crisis was near an end.

No good reading emerged on an important barometer: The return of French cash to France. Most financial observers feel the franc cannot be considered sound until a pattern develops over a period of months showing that the francs have returned home.

There was a rush in Frankfurt to buy United States dollars in exchange for francs, now that the West German government has made clear it will not revalue the mark upward.

The West German bank sold about $350,000,000 U.S., taking marks in exchange. The U.S. dollar was at 3.9795 to the mark, compared with last week's low of 3.97. Dealers said foreign speculators were converting marks back into dollars with revaluation of the mark now ruled out.

In Zurich, home of hard-headed Swiss bankers, the franc and the dollar both closed higher. The dollar was quoted at 4.2980 Swiss francs, up from last Friday's close of 4.2950. Demand sent the price of Swiss francs upward to 86.67 to 100 French francs, compared with 86.44 when trading in francs was suspended last Wednesday to check speculation.

There was brisk trading in gold both in Paris and Zurich. The Paris gold market sold $2,560,000, compared with $4,700,000 last Tuesday. One kilogram—2.2 pounds—sold at $1,348, up from $1,289 last week. The sales suggested some lingering lack of confidence in the franc. Turnover in Zurich was eight tons, well above the six-ton average.

The franc was quoted in Paris at 4.9575-4.9600 to the dollar after reaching 4.974 last week. The official price is 4.937, about 20 cents to the dollar.

Despite the upturn in the franc, there was some nervousness in West Germany as to France's monetary measures. Said one dealer: "The money market is in a very high state of escape."

Others Trapped?

Couple Dies Under Slide

NATAL (CP)—Two bodies were recovered Monday from 500,000 tons of muck, rock and mine waste which thundered across the southern Trans-Canada Highway Sunday morning. Searchers say they fear "there may be other victims."

"There could be other victims trapped," an RCMP spokesman said.

The bodies of John Louis LaPaire, 47, of the Vancouver suburb of Coquitlam, and his wife Shirley Elaine, 46, were found in their late-model car under 15 feet of debris by crews of bulldozers and other earth-movers.

The slide, which covered about 600 feet of the highway to a depth of 30 to 40 feet, occurred 375 miles east of Vancouver, and about 10 miles from the British Columbia-Alberta boundary.

CHROME FIRST
Verne DeCoux of Blairmore, Alta., was present when the couple was found. He said rescue workers found pieces of chrome from the crushed vehicle and started digging by hand to find the occupants. A small brown dog also was found dead inside the car, he said.

The slide was caused by an underground stream that loosened the waste material, accumulated on the side of a dome-shaped mountain about 4,000 feet high.

DEBRIS SPILLS OVER
Witnesses said the debris fell into a small ravine beside the highway, climbed up the other side and poured over the road.

Remaining waste material that hung precariously over rescue workers Sunday was blasted away Monday.

G. E. Baisley, general manager of Kaiser Coal Corp., which owns a strip-mining operation near the site of the slide, said the debris was "overburden" from the mining operation.

BUILDING UP

He said the wastes had been accumulating on the mountainside for at least two years. Mr. Baisley said the pile was begun by Crownsnest Industries Ltd. before Kaiser purchased the property last March.

He said a contractor had inspected the pile about three weeks ago and reported it safe. J. W. Peck, chief mines inspector for B.C., said no regulations exist for inspection of mine waste heaps in the province.

EARLIER SLIDE

"It's not really anybody's responsibility," he said. A smaller slide at the same spot earlier this year brought rocks within a few feet of the highway.

The car was found about 100 feet from the west end of the slide. Heavy rain fell in the area most of last week, contributing to the weakening of the overburden pile.

SAFETY STUDY

Mr. Peck said the question of the safety of such heaps has been under consideration by a committee set up by the federal government. He said a provincial mines inspector will study the slide area today.

The strip mining operation is part of a $45,000,000 contract Kaiser has with Japanese steel interests. Coal from southeastern B.C. will be shipped to Japan via rail through the Roberts Bank port.

Saigon Ready To Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government has informed the United States that it is ready to join in the expanded Paris peace talks with Hanoi and the Viet Cong, U.S. officials said Monday night.

These officials said the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu was expected to announce within the next day or two its willingness to drop the boycott of the proposed talks.

The negotiations were agreed upon by Hanoi and Washington as part of the formula which included the halt of bombing in North Vietnam.

AFTER MEETING

The report came after Thieu held a meeting with his national security council in Saigon, and as the Viet Cong announced in Paris it would hold a news conference Wednesday to outline its stand on the negotiations.

U.S. officials said Thieu indicated willingness to participate in the Paris negotiations after Washington gave him strong assurances that Saigon would be given a leading role on the allied side of the table.

Chosen?

Ontarians Seek Pioneer Life

Goal—A Utopia in B.C.

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-three persons, ranging from a retired engineer to a 15-year-old student, met Sunday to discuss plans for carving out a new society in the B.C. wilds.

Advertising man Angus Cherrington, 35, a former British army officer, ran an ad in local newspapers about a month ago inviting people who wanted a different way of life to join him in the venture.

Cherrington, who has been nursing the dream of forming a Utopia for 15 years, said his organization hopes to establish a new society within the next three or four years somewhere along the B.C. coast. He has applied for a charter in the name of the Canada

New Pioneer Foundation, a non-profit educational group. He expects 1,000 applications after a meeting Dec. 15 at which plans for publicity and recruitment will be made.

Cherrington, who thinks our planet is in serious trouble, said he is not dropping out of society. "I am unplugging at one level and plugging in at another. I am still part of society and I owe something to that society."

Believing "there must be another way to live," Cherrington plans to go to B.C. next fall to make tests and surveys. The actual site will not be chosen for two or three years.

Participants in the plan will have to take courses and train for the pioneer life they will lead, he said.

Premier Bennett pledged Monday the provincial government will set up "the best possible" controls, over strip-mining operations in British Columbia.

But he warned that, while the government wants to protect "land values" in terms of conservation and restoration of the natural landscape following mining operations, it must also ensure there are enough jobs for the province's growing population.

Mr. Bennett was asked to comment following two weekend developments which saw at least two people die when 500,000 tons of mining waste slid over the Southern Trans-Provincial Highway near Natal, and a nationally-televised CBC program dealt with the ravages caused by uncontrolled strip-mining.

The premier said he had seen

AID PLEDGED

Meanwhile West Germany, whose economy is the strongest in Europe, pledged to do "all in its power" to help stabilize the French franc.

The announcement came as speculators stopped trading francs and other currencies for the Deutschmark after last week's massive rush to German money.

HOT MONEY

A government spokesman, Conrad Ahlers, attributed the reduction in speculative "hot money" to West Germany's announced "emergency tax measures" designed to increase imports and reduce Germany's tremendous export trade.

In Washington, Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler said the U.S. should be "laid back" in its economic dealings with the French to help the de Gaulle government recover from the crisis of the franc.

At a news conference, Fowler

The motion sought to censure the Labor government for its handling of the money crisis.

The British government won as President Charles de Gaulle struggled to impose even tougher austerity measures on a balky French nation.

From UPI, CP

The British Parliament overrode charges and catcalls from the Conservative opposition Monday night and gave Prime Minister Wilson authority to carry out his tough new austerity program of tax increases and import curbs.

The rank and file of Wilson's Labor party backed his program designed to pull the nation out of its economic crisis and beat down a Conservative censure motion in a 328-251 vote.

Door Locked Outside At Fatal Fire Scene

BEAUVAIS, France (UPI)—The government Monday ordered an inquiry into a fire that killed 14 mentally-retarded children in a privately-owned mental institution classed as substandard because the owners ignored a 1962 order to build a fire escape.

Police said the institution also had no fire extinguishers or hydrants and the children died in a dormitory whose door was locked from the outside while the owners were away.

Christmas Meaning Not the Same

By DON COLLINS

Go into the streets and ask them what Christmas means. They will tell you many things.

The portly gentleman with the long olgar will tell you it means he has to spend more money than he would like to spend. But it would take a lot of spending to hurt him.

The young man waiting for the bus says it means his brothers will come home from Vancouver and Edmonton to a warm family reunion.

To the attractive woman shopper it will mean the smiles on the faces of her two healthy children as they unwrap presents after a long wait beside the Christmas tree in their well-appointed home.

The grinning high school boy says: "I can almost smell that turkey and taste it now. Man, I'm gonna eat till I can't move. I always do. But who doesn't at Christmas time?"

Who doesn't?

How about Anne and her three sisters, for a start.

When your father is unemployed because of an accident, and your mother is too ill to work, you don't expect a Christmas dinner with all the trimmings.

If you are one of nine children like Jimmy and your mother is a widow without a good job, you can only hope that someone might come by with a turkey.

For many families the end result is the same: There's little hope for a happy Christmas.

That is why the Colonist 500 Fund came into being and why it is trying for the 12th straight year to ease a little of the pain inflicted by poverty at Christmas.

Colonist readers have replied with generous contributions in the past. Last year they gave $33 to each of the 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau, a Community Chest agency.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist at 2631 Douglas or left at Avis-Rent-a-Car at 800 Douglas. Latest donors are listed on Page 2.

Put Your Deeds Where Mouth Is

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada has challenged the Soviet Union to put its legal definition of aggression where its mouth is, particularly in respect to the August invasion of Czechoslovakia.

J. A. Beesley, head of the federal government's legal division, called Monday for a "reasoned (Soviet) explanation of the basis under international law" for action taken by Soviet and Warsaw Pact troops against Czechoslovakia.

Beesley also gave one of the more definitive speeches in the United Nations General Assembly's legal committee on the problems and necessities in reaching an acceptable definition of aggression.

SPECIAL GROUP

The committee is considering a report of a special committee of 35 countries—including Canada—formed by the last General Assembly to study the question of defining aggression.

The assembly acted largely at the instigation of the Soviet Union and many thought it was simply a manoeuvre to provide a vehicle of embarrassment for the West because of such things as the Vietnam war.

The special committee met in June in Geneva, but since then the Soviet Union has become the embarrassed country because of the Czechoslovak invasion. The United States, in its speech to the legal committee, devoted most of its time to the invasion, as have several other Western countries.

OPENING SPEECH

The Soviet Union restricted its opening speech to generalities and had none of the usual condemnation of the U.S. "imperialistic" policies. The Soviet delegation since then has devoted much time answering charges from Western countries, mostly about the doctrine of the "socialist commonwealth" which it enunciated to justify the invasion.

Under the doctrine the commonwealth looks after its own affairs and brooks no interference from the outside.

LEGAL STANDARD

Beesley said: "Put simply, the question is whether or not we are to engage in an attempt to further develop an international legal standard which would incorporate, whether we all intend it or do not, a double standard of two sets of law, one for the leaders of the socialist commonwealth and one for the rest of the world."

"Perhaps the issue might be put more accurately as being whether there is to be one legal regime for great powers and another for the rest of us."

ACTION POINT

It was essential if the committee was to proceed further with the attempt to define aggression that "we hear from the U.S.S.R. a reasoned explanation of the basis under international law for action taken by his country and its allies."

Beesley said any definition of aggression must be acceptable to the majority of members of the General Assembly and all the members of the Security Council.

"It is essential that the great powers be in accord on any proposed definition and it goes without saying that this can only occur at a time when the international climate is propitious."

UN CHARTER

Since the Czechoslovak invasion the international climate had deteriorated.

Beesley emphasized that any definition must not conflict with the UN Charter nor with the peacekeeping functions of the Security Council.

He put strong emphasis on the fact that Canada believes that any definition must deal equally with direct aggression—the crossing of a frontier by troops of other countries—and indirect aggression.

North Downs Two Planes

SAIGON (AP) — Two American jet planes were downed over North Vietnam Monday after coming under attack by Communist MIG fighters and surface-to-air missiles, the United States command in South Vietnam reported.

The command said an unarmed reconnaissance aircraft and an armed fighter plane — which often accompanies a reconnaissance sortie — went down over the North in separate incidents.

Details of the encounters were withheld while efforts got under way to rescue the crews. The command said "suppressive fire," presumably bombing and strafing runs, was called in to cover their rescue.

PILOT CAPTURED

Hanoi radio announced earlier that an American reconnaissance plane was shot down and its pilot captured after he parachuted about 175 miles north of the so-called demilitarized zone.

The two downings were the second and third manned aircraft shot down over the North since the Nov. 1 U.S. bombing halt.

While bombing and shelling of North Vietnam has been stopped under President Johnson's orders to promote enlargement of the Paris peace talks, aerial scouting over the North has continued.

CONG TO GO FREE

The South Vietnamese government has announced it will release 140 Viet Cong prisoners Nov. 30 in a delayed goodwill gesture that marks the largest prisoner release of the war.

A U.S. evaluation team regards 69.8 per cent of South Vietnam's 17,000,000 people as living under "relatively secure" government control, informed U.S. sources said Monday.

The problem has turned up in hundreds of C-130s.

The C-130, workhorse aircraft of the Vietnam war, has developed serious wing cracks which will cost the air force more than $11,000,000 to repair.

The ministries of interior and foreign affairs cancelled the permanent exit visas that allowed millions of Czechoslovaks to leave the country with relative ease and also banned any foreign trips "not conforming to state interests."

Deputy minister of the interior Jaroslav Rybar said 2,067,200 citizens visited other countries in 1968 and 5,000 sought asylum in capitalist countries. Many were scientists, intellectuals and skilled technicians.

Stiff Travel Ban Clamped on Czechs

PRAGUE (UPI) — The Czechoslovak government Monday clamped on tough foreign travel restrictions to stop the flight of skilled manpower and bury still another freedom granted during the springtime reforms.

The ministries of interior and foreign affairs cancelled the permanent exit visas that allowed millions of Czechoslovaks to leave the country with relative ease and also banned any foreign trips "not conforming to state interests."

Deputy minister of the interior Jaroslav Rybar said 2,067,200 citizens visited other countries in 1968 and 5,000 sought asylum in capitalist countries. Many were scientists, intellectuals and skilled technicians.

On another front of the struggle for dwindling national independence, Czechoslovakia's press and political leaders fought Monday for the right to satisfy a spiraling "buying fever" for TV sets and other household comforts despite Soviet pressure to gear the economy to heavy industry.

The argument aligned the average housewife and the nation's best brains against the goals of the Kremlin. It indicated the December plenary session of Czechoslovakia's communist party will bring still another test of political will between Moscow and Prague.

The long-expected travel restrictions were announced as forthcoming weeks ago and widely protested by students and regional communist party groups.

King Charles Canute

ONE MAN standing against the world made an inspiring, if awesome, spectacle this weekend.

Charles de Gaulle, the strong man of France, and to the rest of the world, a stubborn "old cuss," has made another of his dramatic stands by refusing point-blank to devalue the franc against the advice, and even orders of the International Monetary Fund, the central bankers, and the political experts of all the world's leading trading nations.

Certainly in modern times no such one man economic daring is on record. He has called a new type of game that is not the one played by the Gnomes of Zurich, and at the moment he stands like King Canute hopeful but not quite sure that the tide will turn aside at his bidding.

The de Gaulle gamble on the franc is almost unbelievably massive. At one blow he could destroy the French economy, but if he does so he will certainly pull a lot of other people down with him too, and it is on that he is banking.

The initial market response to the de Gaulle ultimatum was negative. There was no prescribed action that should be taken in such circumstances, and it will be some time before an evaluation can be placed on the French defiance.

Two things are apparent. A new meeting of the International Monetary Fund is an essential to draw up new rules and regulations. Failing that a world recession is possible. Either way the Kremlin is laughing.

What in effect de Gaulle is planning to do is to impose strict controls on currency exchange, to cut the French budget and to seek relief from the free trade conditions of European Common Market membership.

In these ways de Gaulle may manage to isolate and insulate himself, but the belt tightening it would entail might set off another exhibition of internal unrest such as last summer's which led to France's current difficulties.

In this crisis de Gaulle can only succeed if he has the whole nation behind him. His victory last summer indicated that he still has the support of the nation as a whole, but sooner or later the old despot must produce, or else.

Now de Gaulle is advocating, what many people have suspected for years, that the principles of free trade as laid out in the European Common Market are not a viable proposition unless each member country works to similar living standards. Germany stands out so far ahead of France in this respect that it is difficult to see how the free movement of goods between these two countries can continue unless a floating foreign currency exchange is adopted.

The great danger is that like Britain, France may be doing too little too late, to effect a lasting cure, but at least de Gaulle can claim that if he is going down he is going down with his colors nailed to the mast.

A Good Start

THE RESIGNATION of Mr. Dalton Camp as national president of the Progressive Conservative Association marks a major step forward for the somewhat disoriented and disarrayed organization the Tory Party has become during the past four years.

An ambitious and much talented individual, Mr. Camp will always have a place in the political history of this country as the man who succeeded in ousting former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker as party leader.

He will also be remembered as the man under whose direction the Conservative Party lost contact with the grass roots of the country, failed to produce any kind of a national policy or program and eventually went down to its greatest defeat at the polls in 1965.

Mr. Camp and his hand-picked national headquarters henchmen made the party organization their own thing, centralizing it to such an extent that they became all but isolated from the rest of the country, living in a sort of mock-ivory tower within which they were impervious to any approach or advice from outside.

It was from these stuffy and almost hallowed precincts that carpetbaggers of every description were sent out to capture party branch nominations in various sections of the country where, in the opinion of the Camp headquarters, the locals were incapable of providing anyone of the calibre needed from within their own constituencies.

From here came the confused explanations of the Tory non-policy, followed by instant programs, excuses and further explanations. From here came the generalship which led the party to disaster despite the gallant rear-guard action of its new leader, Mr. Robert Stanfield.

Mr. Camp's successor will inherit all this and more and will face the formidable task of re-building the party almost from the ground up if the Progressive Conservatives are ever to again become a vital part of the political substance of this country.

Mr. Camp's departure has given the attainment of this much desired objective a good start. It is to be hoped that the impetus is maintained.

Buffer Acceptable

AT LAST, A HOPEFUL SIGN has been given by the Communist administration of North Vietnam. It has expressed the desire to see the restoration of the six-mile-wide buffer strip dividing North and South Vietnam, the so-called demilitarized zone.

It wants to re-establish a truly neutral field on the basis of the Geneva agreement of 1954 which sought to ensure the sovereignty of the ideologically opposite states.

Author of this statement is none other than Mr. Nguyen Thanh Le, chief of the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris.

The fact that this same solution has long been favored by many neutrals, and has considerable support—or did have—in the United States and South Vietnam encourages the hope that it may serve as the basis for a settlement.

The advantage of such a buffer state is believed to lie in the opportunity it would provide for its satisfactory policing by an international commission.

The Korean truce line is not proof against incursions by the North chiefly because it is guarded by the belligerents themselves. It is not an acceptable model. But an adequate neutral team could do the job. In fact, it might be a good idea to study the application of the system there as well as in Vietnam.

Moscow Is Watching . . .

Brave Words of NATO Allies Not Sufficient To Discourage Hardliners Bent on Expansion

By LUBOR J. ZINK

THE Soviet Union has been warned by the Atlantic Alliance that any further aggressive moves or interventions affecting the situation in Europe and the Mediterranean area would "create an international crisis with grave consequences."

It's a safe bet the Kremlin won't take the warning seriously unless NATO moves quickly to give military substance to the wording of its Brussels communiqué.

With the exception of Iceland (which has no army) and Canada (which has no foreign and defence policy at the moment), all the other members of the alliance who contribute troops to NATO's integrated command appeared to have promised a strengthening of their military establishments.

Moscow will be watching for signs of substance behind these pledges. If it comes to the conclusion that they are mere words, that the will to beef up NATO defences is lacking, further aggressive Soviet moves in Europe are almost certain within a fairly short time.

Assuming that the invasion of Czechoslovakia was not only a disciplinary operation within the Russian colonial empire but also, and perhaps primarily, a test of NATO reaction to a major upset of balance of power along the dividing line in Europe, the nature of this reaction will play a big role in either arresting or accelerating Soviet aggressiveness. Mere words of warning cannot and will not have the desired effect.

It may be argued—and some of the Western opponents of stronger defence measures do so argue—that had the men in the Kremlin intended to push on after the invasion of Czechoslovakia, regardless of the consequences, they would have already done so. Why, this argument runs, would the Kremlin have given NATO a chance to recover from the shock?

The answer to that lies, I believe, in reports from Moscow and east-European capitals which maintain that the Soviet politburo was far from unanimous last summer about the policy of open military intervention. The hardliners are said to have prevailed by a very small margin and only after assurances that no further military moves will be made should NATO reaction to the Czechoslovak venture make them too risky.

If these reports are correct—and so far there is no reason to doubt their accuracy—then NATO indeed has a chance to make the Brussels warning effective by strengthening its defences in Europe and the Mediterranean to a level which would restore balance of power in those areas, particularly in terms of conventional forces and equipment.

But it would have to be done quickly and resolutely, because hesitation and procrastination would undoubtedly strengthen the hand of the hardliners in the Kremlin who are waiting for confirmation of their contention that the Western democracies are too demoralized to go beyond mere verbal resolutions.

In these circumstances it is more than probable that failure of the Atlantic Alliance to put military muscle behind the Brussels communiqué within the next few months would give the Kremlin hardliners the green light for further aggressive moves.

Serious students of Soviet strategy and tactics believe that, as a prelude to a major move against Western Europe, the hardliners in the Kremlin would have to occupy first the remaining pockets of dissent within the Soviet bloc, secure the under-belly of NATO in the Mediterranean, block the sea route around South Africa and make sure that the Brenner Pass could not be used as a link between allied forces in Western Germany and Italy.

Should NATO miss its present chance to restore the peace-keeping balance of power in Europe, the next Soviet military moves will, in all probability, be directed against Yugoslavia after massive occupation of Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary, plus seizure of Austria.

If at the same time the Arabs could take care of the Israeli obstacle to Soviet domination of the Middle East, Turkey, Greece and Italy would be next on the list.

With the Soviet Indian Ocean fleet harassing the Cape sea route, the stage would thus be set for a steamrolling operation across Western Europe.

With this in mind, it is essential for NATO not only to warn Moscow against embarking on a scheme of the so-called "island tactics" aggression, but to convince the men in the Kremlin that the warning is backed by sufficient military force and resolve to stop the first move. In other words, NATO must restore the credibility of its military deterrent of Soviet conquest.

After the lightning and unopposed Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia, this can only be done by a convincing increase in NATO defence forces in Europe and the Mediterranean.

Canada, whose contribution to collective security is among the smallest in relation to national wealth, should not hesitate to shoulder its full fair share of the necessary buildup of NATO forces.

The Winter Lover A Divisive Force

By FRANK LOWE

THERE was a time when Canadians from coast to coast were united by one strong bond. All Canadians hated winter.

This gave cohesion to the country, provided everybody with a common conversational topic and generally was a good thing. In those halcyon days the one time a Canadian temporarily hated another Canadian was when a Canadian who had to stay here for the winter met a Canadian who was escaping to the south.

But even this wasn't a nation-shattering kind of hatred. The Canadian who had to stay and tough out the winter had some compensation—he could almost revel in his misfortune and get a kind of reverse pleasure writing his vacationing friend and telling him how tough things were up here.

But now all that has gone. Winter is a time that divides Canadians almost irreparably. Some years ago a few Canadians discovered that snow could mean money. Then, thanks to the modern weapons of publicity and advertising, these few were able to convert a surprising number of otherwise sane Canadians into thinking winter was the greatest season of them all.

In other words, the sick boom was born. People began writing stories about the thrill of falling down the side of a cliff with the thermometer at a steady zero. We were told that all the pretty girls went to the ski slopes. Songs were written about love in long underwear. People started turning out posters and buttons reading: "Help Stamp Out Summer."

Civil war had arrived. I say this because there remained, despite the wiles of publicity and advertising, a solid, sensible core of Canadians who still wanted no part of winter.

What was particularly galling for these solid, sensible Canadians was that soon they began to feel they were in a minority position.

There was a time a fellow could meet a perfect stranger and be sure of a lively conversation merely by saying: "Have you ever experienced such filthy weather?"

Because it was a foregone conclusion the stranger would say: "As a matter of fact, I have. Back in '47 I was working in a town in Saskatchewan and one night the temperature went down . . ."

From then on the conversation flourished. Storms were compared. Degrees of frostbite discussed. Winter tragedies were nostalgically recalled. Such Canadians, in fact, were one small but happy family joined firmly together by their abominable winters. It was a touching national relationship skipping ethnic, language and provincial boundaries.

But today things are bad, and rapidly getting worse. Not only have Canadians lost their common denominator—their hatred of snow—but they have also lost their ability to talk to each other.

Now if a fellow mentions the filthy weather the stranger next to him will contradict him. "Just what we were asking for," he will boom in a loud voice. (Did you ever notice that winter-lovers always have loud, booming voices?)

"A few more days like this and the hills will be ready." Then, when there is no reply to this, the skier will cast a contemptuous glance at his portly companion and say: "However, I guess you're not the skiing type, eh?"

The fellow who tried to open the conversation by this time is being mad. Not only has he been cheated out of his favorite pastime—comparing the cruelties of winter with a stranger—but his physical condition has been derided in public.

Canadians have been placed against Canada.

There are only two courses left open if Canada is to be saved. These of us who continue to keep our sanity and hate winter can cravenly hide our true feelings. We too can pretend that we sled—and love it.

Or—and this course is only for those bold ones who love this country and want it to remain uninvited—we can attack. We can collect statistics about skiing accidents and sprain them at the drop of a crutch.

We can talk about the horrors of snow-blindness and the high incidence of alcoholism on the ski slopes. We can have posters made up that read: "The Family That Skis Together Limps Together."

We could even put pressure on the government to have skis inscribed with the message: "Sliding Can Be Dangerous to Your Health."

In other words, those of us who love our country should be prepared to fight to preserve that one thing all Canadians once enjoyed in common—a hatred of winter.

Such Canadians, in fact, were

An Unworkable Theory

Multi-Racial State A Beguiling Dream

From the Orilla Daily Packet

ONE of the most cherished beliefs of our enlightened democracies is that, given tolerance and understanding and intelligence, peoples of different races and colors can co-exist happily in the same nation, the same society, and even in the same building, intermarrying and eventually producing a mixed generation in which racial differences will be forgotten. Such a belief is inherent in our Christian concept of the brotherhood of man, and our democratic notions of equality, and so convinced are we of its "rightness" that we are wholly committed to its implementation in our society and determined on its success. Yet, on reviewing the experiences of the past, the conditions of the present and the prospects for the future, the most sanguine cannot but admit that our premise of a practical "plural society" is a false one, and that attempts to achieve it must eventually destroy our civilization itself.

The plain truth is that never in all the long history of man have two contrasted races been able to co-exist on an equal basis in a single society, save under an alien rule. In Imperial Rome, for example, a common loyalty to, or enslavement by, a Roman overlord enabled a multitude of varied races to share a single society, but the moment that alien rule was removed, racial rivalry reasserted itself. Similarly, in the British Commonwealth where dreams of a world family of races were fostered by a peaceful multi-racial Empire, the removal of British rule inevitably followed by a reassertion of racial rivalry, whether in backward Africa or in relatively advanced Malaysia and India. Races can only co-exist peacefully when one is the unquestioned dominator of the other, the moment that dominance dissolves into anything resembling equality, racial rivalry inevitably asserts itself. Indeed, Canada provides a classic instance; a basically peasant French community coexisted with a dominant English establishment for two hundred years, but racial rivalry is now aroused by the prospect of parity.

Such conflict is greatly inflamed, and more sharply defined, by the differences of color in Africa, Asia, Britain, and above all, in the United States. The racial enslavement which created these plural societies, which perpetuated them, are no longer acceptable to the aroused conscience of an enlightened community, yet it must be apparent, from even the most cursory study, that the multi-racial mixing we so blandly propose is simply not a practical proposition, however attractive in theory. The only workable solution acceptable to our sensibilities would seem to be the creation of relatively homogeneous racial states, with separate sovereignty, within the United States, and the return of Asians and Africans from Europe and Britain to their country of origin. Whatever the hardship and expense of the mass evacuation—it would be a small price to pay for an end to the racial conflict which now menaces the survival of civilization itself.

Like the other day when the government was asked, in all earnestness, if it was doing its very best to fulfill its commitments and obligations.

Questions like that are made in political heaven for good little governments and the cabinet falls all over itself assuring one and all that everything is well in this best possible of all administrations.

The House of Commons these days can often have all the sound and fury of a minstrel.

But then, hopefully, who knows that perhaps there isn't an explosion quietly ticking away in the back of some Opposition MP's mind, . . .

Pakistan Torn by Political Unrest

President Ayub Khan Fears United Opposition

By CYRIL DUNN

from London

VIOLENT demonstrations by Punjabi students in support of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto and his anti-government People's Party last week finally obliged President Ayub Khan of Pakistan to arrest his former foreign minister and closest civilian ally, Bhutto and several of his party colleagues have been committed to indefinite detention under the Defence of Pakistan Rules—a device for the suppression of sedition inherited by Pakistan from the British Raj.

President Ayub's reluctance to act against Bhutto—who he fired in 1966 because of his implacable opposition to the Soviet-sponsored Tashkent peace agreement between India and Pakistan—has long been as obvious as the main reason for it. Four months ago, in an exclusive interview with The Observer of London, Bhutto attacked Ayub's regime as "fascist" without attracting any counter-action. Since then the former foreign minister has given "real hell" to the government in a series of unimpeded public speeches.

The president was evidently aware that Bhutto's greatest weakness as an opposition leader lay in his long and profitable association with the "fascist" regime he now condemns. It could be that Bhutto has actively courted arrest in order to prove to the people of Pakistan that nothing but enmity today exists between him and the regime. Still only 40, Bhutto can well afford a stretch of imprisonment which might improve his political prospects, perhaps even in time for the presidential election of 1970.

But however audacious President Ayub may have been to frustrate Bhutto by ignoring him, he could scarcely ignore Punjabi support for Bhutto and his party, Punjabis predominate both in the armed forces of Pakistan and in the civil service. Dissatisfaction among Punjabi students was evidently seen as a serious threat to the future stability of the regime and so compelled the arrest of Bhutto and led to the campaign against his personal character now being developed in Pakistan's government-controlled press.

The simultaneous arrest of Khan Wali Khan and members of the National Awami Party is, on the surface, bewildering. It suggests an unlikely alliance between the "hawkish" Mr. Bhutto and the traditional Hawks of the Frontier. Wali Khan is, of course, a political giant in the northwest frontier region of Pakistan and a son of Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan, honoured as "the Frontier Gandhi" in the days of India's freedom struggle.

Ghaffar Khan now lives in exile in Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, after spending 10 years in Pakistani prisons for advocating freedom for the Pushtu-speaking tribesmen along the frontier.

Khan Wali Khan himself advocates autonomy for Pushtu-speakers within Pakistan and is an established opponent of President Ayub. In West Pakistan, the National Awami Party has long been strongest along the frontier. But Wali Khan is unlikely to have much in common with Bhutto, who hails from the desert province of Sind. And the National Awami Party is pro-Moscow, while Bhutto is by reputation pro-Peking.

Even so, co-operation between the men of the frontier and disgruntled youngsters in the old Punjab is, in a limited sense, not impossible and would certainly be reckoned dangerous by the regime.

When, in 1964, the elderly Miss Fatima Jinnah—sister of the late Founder of Pakistan—contested the presidential election, the most disparate elements in the opposition united behind her for one purpose—to get rid of President Ayub and his "basic democracy." The same thing could imaginably happen again, and with better prospects of success, behind the leadership of Mr. Bhutto.

It has been what has to be the involuntarily co-operative doing of the two men who set the pace and tone of the Commons. Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield.

The prime minister did his part in the defusing of what, until now, traditionally has been the political bomb of the political sides after a single question or a persistent series of inquiries in the Commons touched off their fuses.

But there were others, less sensational, scores, hundreds, perhaps even thousands of them that made the Daily Question Period come alive as a time of snap, crackle and pop politics.

All that has seemed to have come to a well-ordered end since the new Parliament went quietly into business last Sept. 12.

Dignity and decorum and a fine-mannered "after-you-Alphonse" air have descended upon what, so recently, dependably and entertainingly, used to be an excitingly uproarious House.

It has been what has to be the involuntarily co-operative doing of the two men who set the pace and tone of the Commons. Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield.

The prime minister did his part in the defusing of what, until now, traditionally has been the political bomb of the question period by excusing, in shifts, members of his 28-man cabinet from attending it.

He called it the "roster", then, deciding he didn't like that label, banned its use.

He argued, and with some good reason, that all that high priced (at an annual $35,000 per copy) ministerial help didn't really have to be in the Commons every day, sitting there wasting time while waiting for Opposition questions that often didn't get asked.

The Conservative leader did his part in the hushing of the once-raucous DQP into the quiet time it has become by simply not objecting long or loud enough to the prime minister's cabinet-swing-shift.

Can you imagine former Tory Leader Diefenbaker, that human thunderclap, or his now-retired right-hand-man, ex-Conservative defence minister Gordon Churchill, standing still for a cabinet "roster"?

Not old Churchill who used to wake up angry to get madder by the minute!

But going more or less quietly along, protesting more in sorrow than in anger against the prime minister's now-you-see-them-now-you-don't part-time House plan for his cabinet, the Opposition has somehow managed to oblige him further.

The ruling Conservatives—yes, they do have some noisy rebels who object—have made the fatal mistake of misunderstanding what the Daily Question Period is all about.

In all innocence they seem to think that an Opposition MP asks a question of the government minister for the simple purpose of securing information.

Dief the Chief never made that mistake in his years in the Opposition—nor did Paul Martin, Jack Pickersgill, Lionel Chevrier, Paul Hellyer, nor even that old diplomat Lester Pearson, when they sat on the losers' side of the Commons.

To all of them, the Question Period was the one tradition-hallowed time to roust the cabinet, to seek it to the prime minister and the cabinet, and to create as much chaos and confusion in the ranks of the government as was possible within the frequently bent and sometimes broken parliamentary rules.

But even worse now—the Conservatives have taken to asking the government just the kind of questions it hopes and prays will be asked.

Like the other day when the government was asked, in all earnestness, if it was doing its very best to fulfill its commitments and obligations.

Questions like that are made in political heaven for good little governments and the cabinet falls all over itself assuring one and all that everything is well in this best possible of all administrations.

The House of Commons these days can often have all the sound and fury of a minstrel.

But then, hopefully, who knows that perhaps there isn't an explosion quietly ticking away in the back of some Opposition MP's mind, . . .

U.S., Germany Opposed to International Monetary Parley France Wants New 'Bretton Woods' Talks

The United States and France are fighting a quiet battle over whether to hold a major international conference that would revise the values of the world's currencies for the first time in almost a quarter of a century.

The purpose of a conference would be to halt the crises that have been shaking the world's monetary markets every few months. Henry Fowler, U.S. treasury secretary, has come out strongly against a conference. He says improving the situation should be an "evolutionary process."

President Johnson's administration, with less than two months to go, does not want to get into an enterprise of this kind or to commit president-elect Richard Nixon. A conference now could bring an increase in the price of gold and a decrease in the value of the U.S. dollar — though probably only a small one.

long urged a conference. Foreign Minister Michel Debre has asked for one repeatedly in the last year.

Some experts think that de Gaulle in refusing to devalue the franc was determined to show that if support from other countries failed to save it, the international monetary system would be in such disarray that only a major conference could settle matters and give world business the peace it needs.

West Germany, "now the most powerful economic force in Europe, does not want a conference either, at least not at this time. Elections are coming up next October and a change in the value of the mark would hurt Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger's government with the voters.

By CARL HARTMAN, from Brussels

He has vowed that he will not revalue the mark upward, as other countries are urging him to do, as long as he remains chancellor.

After the new administration takes over in Washington on Jan. 20, pressure for a big meeting is likely to revive.

The last one, the Bretton Woods conference in New Hampshire, was held at the end of the Second World War.

Since then many countries have changed the value of their currencies, some of them several times, but there has been no general revision.

Advocates of a conference point out that as the years passed they have brought great changes in the world's economy. Western Europe and Japan have become big exporters. Britain's exports have declined. The role of the U.S.

It seems likely that a conference will have to be held eventually — if not in the spring, in a year from now after the West German elections are out of the way.

An international conference would be able to agree on changes with a minimum of embarrassment for the countries whose currencies had to be downgraded. In a general readjustment, the fate of individual currencies would be less conspicuous.

A general conference would also be an occasion for reviewing the present system of fixing the rate of exchange for each country's money in relation to the dollar, with only the dollar pegged directly to the price of gold.

BACKGROUND

France's (and de Gaulle's) True Power Position Unmasked

Crisis Ends Illusion of Grandeur

France now is in the process of losing her grandeur and trying to find her true weight.

Only a few months ago General de Gaulle, blinded by the glitter of his gold reserves, challenged the dollar and cold-shouldered the pound. Now, with the gold rush going in the opposite direction, he finds himself engulfed in a financial crisis which is symptomatic of a much deeper malaise.

His towering figure, his unique authority and his stubbornness magnified France's independent power position far beyond her own true strength. He created an illusion of great power grandeur which he himself came to accept as an immutable fact.

But the political upheaval of last May and now the economic crisis have pricked the grand illusion and unmasked France's true power position.

It would be wrong to gloat over France's predicament. Both French political and financial stability are vital to the stability of the West. Her weakness automatically weakens others and so we find that this crisis is making for strange bedfellows, though they should not be as strange as in fact they are today.

Britain has not only joined France in putting pressure on Bonn to revalue the mark, but ironically even agreed to help bolster the French franc, something Paris refused to do for the pound last spring.

Sober influential Frenchmen say they welcomed the truth asserting itself about France's power position. They felt that France's future would be better served if it acted in accordance with her real and actual power.

The climb down from dazzling Olympian heights came faster and the fall was harder than expected, but it will still take time for the realities to sink in.

Actually they began to sink in when de Gaulle first found that his attempt to act like the great power in Europe in his dealings with the Soviet Union led nowhere, and when the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia put an end to his One Europe policy.

Now, in addition, France's economic internal instability has seriously undermined French confidence in Gaulist leadership, and the crisis of confidence inside France is deepening.

After Bonn's power play last week, it would be wrong to assume yet that the weight of political power in Western Europe has moved to Bonn. The West German coalition government, because of its internal brittleness, the Germans' fear of themselves and their inherent reluctance to taking initiatives, is not one likely to assume leadership in Europe or look much beyond its own prosperity.

But it will, to use Willy Brandt's quip, cease being an economic giant and only a political dwarf. Certainly Germany's inferiority complex toward France will wane and her influence in Europe will grow.

That de Gaulle, at least to some extent, began to prepare for this evolution is evident from the first signs of the French government's mild attempts to thaw the ice-cold Franco-American relations.

Already, before the American elections de Gaulle indicated his preference for Richard Nixon. It is not only that he feels more comfortable with a conservative, but that a change in the White House also opens up an opportunity to start a new page in Franco-American relations.

If he is willing to draw some very basic lessons from current events he should become more co-operative in international financial affairs and more sympathetic to the problems of others.

His views on Soviet Policy also have moved closer to those of Washington. He has now fewer illusions about the part France can play as an intermediary in an East-West detente and he takes a more realistic view, since the invasion of Czechoslovakia, of the obstacles and limitation to such a detente.

Therefore, since Nixon has won the elections and has expressed the desire to visit Paris, an improvement in Franco-American relations, at least superficially, may become possible.

Those who watch these relations closely note that the anti-American flavor on French television and at Quai Dorsay background briefings for the press has been diffused and the door to the Elysee is more open to Americans.

There are also some indications that, perhaps in view of the sharply reduced French budget, nuclear development will be severely curtailed and that de Gaulle may want to approach the Americans for information in this field to save on research and may even become interested in the acquisition of American tactical nuclear weapons.

There is no expectation that de Gaulle will change his mind about NATO, except that he is now unlikely to abandon it altogether, or that he will become more conciliatory toward Britain's entry into the common market.

His own outlook on the constellation of Western Europe has not changed and will not change, and not compromise solution, such as the latest Belgian attempt based on the Western European Union, will make him more amenable.

Whether his disappearance from the scene would make Britain's entry into Europe easier is doubtful, though one or two of his likely successors may be more conciliatory. What is even more difficult to judge is whether a more self-confident West German government, which may succeed the current coalition government, would still welcome British membership in the common market.

But, once the dust of this monetary crisis has settled down, we will see that it has wrought much deeper changes into the face of Western Europe than we can gauge at this moment. Monetary affairs in the longer run will prove to have had a profound political effect, too.

Curiously enough, the economic and financial troubles succeeded in overriding deep political disagreements. In the process France has been cut down to a more realistic size, de Gaulle's new franc has proved to be fallible. And so has the general himself.

West Germany has been made aware of her inner strength and hence perhaps also of her wider responsibilities, and Britain and France suddenly find themselves in the same boat, forced to squeeze the poison of creeping inflation out of their economic bloodstream.

Britain's economy remains the weaker and more vulnerable, but her internal political situation is more resilient than France's.

And so Western Europe's power constellation is shifting, the political and economic weight is being distributed more evenly, more equally and in the end it will find itself the healthier for it.

Trade Struggle Imminent

By HAROLD MORRISON
From London

The European currency crisis threatens to degenerate into an intensified trade struggle with both France and Britain restraining imports by various means while mounting an exports offensive in a desperate struggle to restore world confidence in their beleaguered currencies.

Two vital questions are involved — whether international obligations are being breached and whether Anglo-French actions may eventually force other markets to erect defences of their own to protect their traditional trade links.

Aside from action to restrain internal markets through higher taxes and other means, Britain has decided on an import deposit scheme whereby importers must turn over to the government for six months one-half the cost of most competitive goods before they can be released from customs.

Some Canadian and other overseas authorities have suggested this may be a breach of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade since it openly discriminates in favor of domestic suppliers.

A similar criticism may be made of President de Gaulle's announcement that taxes involving French exports will be cut. This would suggest export subsidies which again may be a breach of GATT.

However, there is unlikely to be much of an outcry by foreign competitors since it is evident, at least in the case of France, that it must resolve a currency crisis that could spread into other countries through competitive currency price cuts.

DeGaulle's decision to reject devaluation and impose exchange curbs, restrain inflation through a deep cut in government spending while pushing exports to balance international payments brought a note of relief in many capitals.

The alternative, a big currency cut, might have forced Britain to cut her own currency again and might have spread into competitive transatlantic and transpacific devaluations of the kind that preceded the world depression of the 1930s.

For Canadian and other exporters, the prospect of at least a temporary decline in trade opportunities in some European markets may be offset by greater opportunities in at least one — West Germany — where a small tax cut in imports may make more foreign goods competitive with domestic production.

But it is doubtful that increased opportunities in Germany will compensate for temporary losses in France and Britain.

This rising competition for outlets is likely to embrace semi-manufactured and manufactured goods. Canada's exports of raw materials required in the production of goods are not likely to be affected.

Centre-Leftists in Italy Unite in Premier Choice

ROME (AP) — The Christian Democrat party chose its secretary, Mariano Rumor, as its candidate for premier Monday. A new centre-left majority government appeared to be in the making.

The key Socialist party announced it would go along with the choice of Rumor.

Political observers said it seemed probable that President Giuseppe Saragat would ask Rumor to form a new government Tuesday to end Italy's current political crisis.

The apparent accord behind Rumor's candidacy by both Christian Democrats and Socialists—the two main parties of the old centre-left coalition—came after Socialist Alessandro Pertini, under an exploratory mandate from Saragat, conferred with leading Christian Democrats and Socialists.

Pertini's mandate was to examine the prospects for formation of a new centre-left government and report to Saragat on which political leader would be most acceptable.

The Christian Democrat council earlier issued a communique saying the party should be formed without delay to give Italy a chance to cope with labor and student unrest and the grave financial problems of Western Europe.

Rumor was given a vote of confidence within his own party Sunday night when a majority rejected his resignation. He had quit in a power struggle with former premier Aldo Moro.

Political quarters speculated that Saragat gave Pertini the mandate specifically to bring the Socialists back to the government and pull Italy out of a week-long crisis.

When I first started the Spa, just 60 days ago, I was amazed at the weight I had put on due to lack of exercise. It was then and there I had to make the big decision of my health as well as my career. I suffered a serious back accident a few years ago, and due to this I constantly had severe back pain. At times I found it unbearable to work such long hours on my feet, but with the help of the Spa I not only strengthened my lower back, but found my work as a model by far much easier to endure.

Blast Rocked Ship, Then Flames Came

HONOLULU (AP) — Twenty-three crewmen from a burned-out West German freighter arrived Monday relating a tale of abandoning their ship at sea. Two crewmen died in the attempt Wednesday.

"The decks were in flames as we were trying to get the lifeboats down, and the seas were extremely rough," said Hans Bottler, third mate on the freighter Cap Colorado, owned by the Columbus Line of West Germany.

An explosion rocked the vessel before dawn Wednesday, Bottler said, and flames raced through it within minutes.

The rescued crewmen arrived aboard the Indian merchant ship Sumadragupata Jayanti.

One man was crushed to death between the Cap Colorado and the lifeboat. Another was lost.

"We just don't know what happened to him," Bottler said. The 23 crewmen, two passengers and five people who were working their way from Brisbane, Australia, to Vancouver spent 12 hours on two lifeboats and two liferafts before the Indian vessel plucked them up.

Eight men, including skipper Wilhelm Just, remained aboard the ship. A tugboat Sudbury II, from Victoria, was sent to tow the Cap Colorado to Honolulu.

Flights to Cuba Popular During Weekend

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two plane-loads of travellers, forced to Cuba at gunpoint by separate teams of hijackers, returned to the United States with strikingly similar stories of the latest acts of air piracy.

"A Pan American Airways jet, commanded by three gunmen over the Atlantic after leaving New York for San Juan, Puerto Rico, landed in Havana Sunday minutes after the first hijack victims of the weekend were flown home.

An Eastern Airlines jet en route to Miami from Chicago, was taken over Saturday night by five men who forced their way into the cockpit at gunpoint, then stood their victims a round of drinks.

BUSY CHARTER

The 78 Eastern passengers were returned to the United States in a plane chartered by the U.S. state department. Cuban authorities released the stolen jetliners and crews a few hours later.

The same charter plane was dispatched back to Cuba and retrieved the Pan American passengers early today.

Both captains said they learned their crafts had been hijacked when gun-waving men entered the cockpits shouting identical orders—"Cuba! Cuba! Cuba!"

'SIT DOWN'

Pan American Capt. Alvin Walker said, "It didn't take us long to decide. I told him, 'Don't shoot. Sit down. We go to Cuba.'"

Eastern pilot Robert Silver said that when his abductor pointed a pistol and ordered a new destination, "I looked at him and smiled and said, 'That's no problem. We're on the way.'"

ALMOST FESTIVE

After initial tensions eased, passengers on both planes reported their kidnappings took on an almost festive atmosphere.

Eastern stewardess Nancy Corson said one of the hijackers gave her $20 and insisted that she serve the passengers a round of drinks.

When served, passenger David Ruxton of Chicago said he was told the drink was on "the gentleman in the back with the gun."

WOMEN, BABIES

The Pan American hijack team was accompanied by a woman and a baby. A woman, two children and a baby were part of the Eastern hijack party.

Both groups said their sole purpose in hijacking the planes was to return to their native Cuba.

NO TROUBLE

Both trips were made without incident.

The weekend air thefts were the 17th and 18th commercial hijackings to Cuba since January. In all, 23 planes have made the trip at gunpoint this year.

Charged Man Dies Just Before Trial

L'AQUILA, Italy (UPI) — One of nine men charged with manslaughter and negligence in the 1963 Vajont dam floods that drowned 2,117 people in six minutes was found dead Sunday on the eve of his trial.

The victim was Mario Pardini, 56, who supervised construction of the dam. Police in Venice said the cause of his death was gas asphyxiation and labelled it an apparent suicide.

Millions of tons of water shot over the lip of the ultramodern electrical dam in Italy's far northwest corner when a mountain landslide crashed into its artificial lake on Oct. 9, 1963.

Field Roars Out of London On Test Drive to Australia

LONDON (Reuters)—Ninety-eight cars roared away from the outskirts of London Sunday at the start of a 10,000-mile drive to Sydney, Australia.

Thousands cheered as the cars, represented 14 countries, began 10½ days of almost continuous driving across Europe's ice-covered mountains, through the deserts of Iran and across India to Bombay.

At Bombay, the drivers will take a ship for a nine-day journey to Fremantle where they begin a grueling 3,500-mile stretch across Australia.

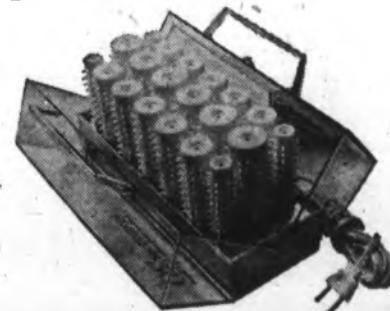

CARRY SUPPLIES

Those who make it to Sydney will have defeated floods, ice, snow, mud and desert sands in a bid to share in the £19,700 (about $30,000) prize money offered by the sponsors, the London Daily Express and the Sydney Daily Telegraph.

The cars are piled high with aids to help the drivers meet any emergency.

All cars are loaded with tinned food and those with ## nearly enough Datsuns to go around

So many people switched to Datsun, we couldn't keep up with the demand. But things are different now. We've got nearly enough cars and trucks to go around even though more people than ever before are deciding on Datsun.

With expanded production facilities turning out nearly 100,000 cars and trucks a month in Japan (one plant has a Datsun rolling off the line every 45 seconds!) there's a far greater supply of cars available now.

Four specially built Datsun-carrying ships, each capable of transporting 1200 cars, are coming to Canada more often. And with the cars come parts. Although we say Datsuns have 100,000 mile built-in reliability, we still back them with over a million dollars in parts in Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal warehouses. It's just good insurance. And of course, with Datsun's coast-to-coast network of more than 150 dealers, you're never far from expert service when you need it. Just for the record: there are over 700 Datsun dealers in North America.

What makes Datsuns so popular? They're great automobiles for the money. They offer advanced engineering and all the trimmings at suggested list prices starting from $1845.

And they've proved they can take the toughest Canadian conditions. Datsun won the Canadian Rally Championship in 1967 and two classes in the Shell 4000 Rally, in 1968. No wonder Datsun cars and trucks are in such demand in Canada and 100 other countries. They've earned their popularity.

New Datsun flies to dealer meeting. Parts are often shipped across Canada by air.

$1,000,000 parts stock in Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal warehouses.

The stock and bond markets are becoming so inured to assassinations, war, peace, domestic revolution, gold panics and runs on currency, that nothing seems to disturb them. The actions of the weekend spoke volumes. The monetary experts said that if France did not devalue the franc the international monetary system would crumble.

Dairy Men Discuss Industry

Closed committee meetings to discuss aspects of the dairy industry and the operation of marketing boards were held Monday as a preamble to the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

The convention at the Empress Hotel will formally open this morning with a welcome address from Clara Copeland, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Guest speaker at the banquet tonight will be Paul St. Pierre, Vancouver newspaper columnist who was elected Liberal MP for Coast-Clifton at the last federal election.

Provincial Agriculture Minister Cyril Sheppard will address the annual get-together of farmers Wednesday.

American Ambassadors Recalled

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. said Monday it is notifying dealers and owners that replacements are required in steering linkage components on some 5,622 of its 1969 Rebels and Ambassador cars.

The company said it is recalling 5,790 Rebels and 11,179 Ambassadors for inspection to locate the 5,622 believed to have faulty parts.

And the longer the day went, the more confidence seemed to come into the market.

The shattering events of the past few days would, a few years ago, have created near-panic conditions on Wall Street and elsewhere. Monday trade went on as if nothing had happened, and some of the top-grade stocks — notably the senior oils — made significant gains.

THIS RANGE

"It is completely impossible for anyone at this range to predict what is going to happen," said one local investment man.

"I suppose many people are secretly quite pleased that de Gaulle has thumbed his nose at the mysterious money men who try to shape our lives. I can see no other reason for the comparative indifference with which cataclysmic events have been treated."

STERLING REVIVED

The most pronounced effect of the weekend events was upon sterling. It strengthened by nearly a cent on the Canadian dollar at Montreal and by three-quarters of a cent on New York.

There appeared initially to be some doubt if Britain would indeed proceed with the new austerity program announced last Friday by Chancellor Jenkins. But the hope was dispelled when the government survived a vote of confidence in the Commons late in the day.

Also strengthening sterling was the unloading of the German mark which had been bought by speculators last week in large quantities in the belief that Germany would upgrade its value. When this hope was dashed, they started to get out, replacing the marks with dollars and pounds.

DOMAN NOT FOR SALE

Rumors current in Victoria that the lumber-transportation firm of Doman Industries has changed hands were firmly denied Monday by Herb Doman, president of the Duncan-based company.

"There is no change in ownership whatever," said Mr. Doman. "I am the majority shareholder in the company."

He added that in the past, several approaches had been made by various companies with a view to purchasing various assets of the company, but to all these the answer of Mr. Doman and his board of directors has been "a great, big No."

STILL SAME

He wanted to make it clear that no negotiations were proceeding at present, and that even if they were the answer would still be the same.

Island Cows Win Prizes

Two Greater Victoria Jersey cows won prizes recently at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Third prize in the three-year-old class went to Brackenhurst D S Kate of A. W. Aylard and Son farm, Sidney. The prize milk was sold to an Ontario farm for $350.

J. A. Wright of Saanichton took 13th prize in the aged cow class with Warwick Gina's Maggie.

"We have no incentive to sell," he said. "The outlook for the company is excellent and the full profits from the new sawmill at Ladysmith are only beginning to come in."

He said production there has risen to 120,000 board feet a shift, and that when a third shift is installed in the near future, the mill would produce nearly 500,000 board feet a day.

HIGH HOPES

"Our year ended on Oct. 31, and although the accounts are not yet available, I can say that we shall have had a very good year," added Mr. Doman.

One of the current rumors had connected Doman with Pacific Logging, the forestry arm of Canadian Pacific Investments, which is a minority shareholder and a supplier of logs for the Ladysmith mill.

Luxury line call costs between B.C. and Hawaii this winter are being reduced.

B.C. Telephone is dropping its charges for calls to the sunny islands by more than 20 per cent for station-to-station calls.

The new three-minute rates are $6.90 on day rate and $7.70 for evening and Sundays.

Person-to-person day rates remain unchanged at $9 per three minutes, and night and Sunday rate stays at $7.50.

Communications for 1971

Ottawa Handed Rival Satellite Bids

OTTAWA (CP) — Rival designs to park communications satellites in space over the equator were turned in to the federal industry department Monday as the space segment of a domestic satellite network aimed specially at the north.

A Northern Electric Co. plan calls for two 13-foot high cylinders packed with electronic gear to be put up in 1971, a spare on the ground plus another two to be launched in five years.

DOMESTIC NETWORK

RCA Victor Ltd., kept the wraps on its proposal until today's meeting of the International Aerospace Exhibition in Montreal. It is the second company asked by the federal government to submit satellite designs for a domestic communications network.

The designs will be assessed in coming weeks by the industry department and by the nucleus of the proposed new federal communications department to be headed by Postmaster-General Eric Kierans. Then it's up to the government to say which one it wants.

The satellite segment is expected to cost about $33,000,000 — roughly one-third of an anticipated total cost of $100,000,000 for satellites, ground stations and rockets to launch the voice-in-the-sky.

But before the federal government still must designate the space agency which will operate them and negotiate for their launching, probably with the United States' National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The Americans and Russians have the only rockets powerful enough to lift the "birds" into orbit thousands of miles up.

At a news conference, Northern Electric unveiled a half-scale model of its 959-pound satellite. The model and 1,200 pages of design information submitted to the government are products of a $267,000, six-month study.

The design would take care of Canada's message and television requirements for up to 10 years, the company said. It would provide six-channel capacity able to relay 6,000 one-way voice circuits or six color television programs.

Each satellite would have a life of five years. After that, the jets to keep it from wobbling or drifting off its parking spot above the equator would be expended. Within six months it would be useless.

For the first five-year period, two satellites would be needed in the sky plus a spare on the ground. This would allow for failures of one and for communications blackouts of one of them when the sun passes behind in a direct line with the earth ground stations.

As the orbiting satellites died, two new ones would be launched to replace them.

EIGHT SATELLITES

If the communications demands expand beyond the capacity of 6,000-voice or six color TV programs, additional satellites could be built and launched. To handle all 12 television channels currently in use in Canada, the system would require eight satellites over the 10-year period, plus a standby spare on the ground.

Businessmen Cheered By Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Executives of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce say they find Prime Minister Trudeau "very, very receptive" to the idea of co-operation between business and government in managing the country's economy.

Chamber president A. S. Leach of Winnipeg, who led a cross-country delegation of 57 in a meeting Monday with 18 government ministers, said later he is "very optimistic about our relations with the government."

At its first meeting with the Trudeau administration in an annual lobbying session, the chamber delegation stressed what executives described as "underlying principles" they would like to see the government pursue in economic policy rather than emphasizing specific lines of action.

DETAILS LATER

Detailed recommendations were taken up at subsequent meetings of specialized chamber committees with separate government departments. Included are committees on taxation, health and industrial relations.

In its general brief, however, the chamber singled out specific anxieties. It repeated its opposition to the federal medical care program, said labor union powers should be curbed, urged cuts in public spending and criticized tax policies of the Oct. 22 budget.

WORK TOGETHER

"We found the prime minister very, very receptive," said Leach, "not necessarily accepting anything and everything to a 100-per-cent degree, but we got the impression he would like to have us working with him, in conjunction with him, in managing the country's economy."

Lionel P. Kent of Montreal, chairman of the chamber executive council, said Finance Minister Edgar Benson agreed on the need to control inflation.

"But we want action," Mr. Kent added.

The chamber said it was especially worried by what it called "basic changes in the tax structure" contained in the Oct. 22 budget.

Executives explained they were objecting to unilateral federal adjustment of taxes affecting the provinces and business without prior consultation, namely in alterations of estate and gift taxes which are shared with the provinces and the imposition of a new, two-per-cent income tax reserved entirely to the federal treasury.

Kent said it was more important for the federal government to "get a consensus" beforehand on such changes than it was to maintain traditional budget secrecy in advance.

There Is Nothing in Sports Quite Like Grey Cup Frolic

By GORDE HUNTER
TORONTO — The annual fall madness is just beginning to sweep over this giant of a city. The white-hatted Calgarians, some of whom probably haven't slept since that halcyon day one week ago, are seen everywhere and their rankings will swell to invasion size within the next 24 hours. I have managed, through the generosity of expense accounts, to be a part and parcel of Grey Cup whoop-de-do on 20 occasions and while familiarity can breed a certain amount of cynicism, I have never become bored with this one national sporting event. IT'S A BREATH of fresh air togetherness between east and west. It's the uninhibited frolic of street dancing, impromptu parades, noisemakers, horses wandering through the lobby of the regal Royal York and yes, of bleary eyes and heavy heads.

It's the frantic search for tickets and the imperturbable scalpers peddling same at double the face value. Come Saturday morning it is not improbable that some of them will hang on their own greed and be stuck with duets that will beg for a half price.

WHEN CALGARY is represented it's a miniature Stampede. Staid business heads throw off the grim-faced men, dress up in some of the fanciest western costumes seen outside Las Vegas and join in the carnival with the ordinary working stiff.

It's a time when a bottle of mix and a bucket of ice through room service costs as much as the booze. Walk down any major hotel corridor and hold your ears from the din of room parties that spring up on the slightest pretext.

IT'S A TIME to watch your wallet every minute because the deft-fingered dips are everywhere. In Toronto it's generally non-destructive frolic as compared to the hooliganism of Vancouver, but the gendarmes, while tolerant, are ever ready for any outbreak.

It's team colors streaming from every coat collar and it's land office business for the street vendors with their miniature footballs, Grey Cups, dolls and forgeries.

FOR A LUCKY thousand or so, it's the color of the Schenley award presentations, and fans vie for invitations to the bubbly blowout with the same dogged determination they show in getting game tickets. On Friday night it's the Grey Cup dinner. For ten bucks you get the usual rubber chicken circuit fare, plus a lot of speakers who can't be heard over the din of ill-mannered guests who spent too much time at the pre-dinner cocktail hour.

Saturday morning it's the big parade, and I must admit that since the first great parades of 1948, '49, they have been mostly overrated advertisements in gaudy vehicles. Calgarians might change all this again Saturday.

IT'S THE pre-game traffic crush at CNE and then, the spine-tingling moment when 30,000 fans rise and sing O Canada. Watching a Grey Cup game on TV can never equal the thrill of seeing it "live" from the stands.

In Toronto it's the beauty of Lake Ontario in the background and of the best halftime shows in any football anywhere you care to name. And, of course, it's the unbridled joy or the depths of despair, depending on whose ox gets gored on the field of play.

It's the post-game shenanigans at the Royal York and the general atmosphere tells you who won, who lost. When the western representative wins, the action is lively, full-throated and seemingly never ending. When the west loses, the damper isn't hard to observe.

AND FINALLY, it's the dull, grey world of Sunday morning as the weary fanatics head for railway depots and airline terminals. The odd noisemaker breaks the silence and a lonely crier of "Whoopieeee" echoes through the deserted, furniture-free lobby.

It's the great letdown, but it's always worth it and there's always next year for an encore.

There is nothing in sport to quite match a Grey Cup week.

British Businessmen Rally to Save Villa

BIRMINGHAM (Reuters) — A £500,000 (about $1,300,000) plan to thwart a possible takeover of the Aston Villa English soccer team by an American sports corporation was announced Monday night by a consortium of five British businessmen.

An official of the Atlanta, Ga., Chiefs soccer team said Monday the Chiefs are interested in taking over Villa, which now is at the bottom of the English Second Division and in deep financial trouble.

Fred Foster, secretary of the Aston Villa Shareholders' Association, said Monday:

"We are horrified by the idea of a takeover of the club from America or from anywhere else outside Birmingham."

"We would be 100 per cent Aston Villa. We have the money and we want to have a go."

Aston Villa, once the pride of English soccer recently fired manager Tommy Cummings and assistant manager Malcolm Musgrove.

The Villa directors held a series of crisis meetings and offered to resign if a plan was found to reorganize the club.

Villa, founded 94 years ago, was one of the 12 original members when the English Football League was formed in 1888. Despite its decline in recent seasons, it still holds a major place in English soccer.

William C. Bartholomay, president of Atlanta Braves of the National Baseball League, confirmed that his organization, which operated the Chiefs soccer team the last two years, had made "preliminary contact" with officials of the British team.

He said the Braves became interested when shareholders of Aston Villa indicated they might sell the club.

The Chiefs, along with other teams in the U.S. National Soccer league, have folded.

Al Balding Cracks Bone During Fitness Drill

TORONTO (UPI)—Al Balding, who returned to Canada in triumph after winning individual honors at the recent World Cup golf championship in Rome, has suffered a broken bone in his back. The injury was expected to keep him away from golf for six weeks.

Balding suffered the injury while doing weight lifting exercises at Lloyd Percival's Fitness Institute here. Percival said the break occurred in a small bone between Balding's shoulders while the golfer had weights across his back. He said the injury was known as a "stress fracture" and it involved no displacement of the bone.

Chinooks Rebound To Trim Shores

VICTORIA — Victoria Chinooks, trailing from their first loss of the season Saturday to North Shore Mountaineers, regained sole possession of first place in the Inter-City Men's Basketball League Sunday by thumping the Shores, 83-56.

Bill Carlson was brilliant for Chinooks in Sunday's victory, scoring 16 points, hauling down 20 rebounds and making several outstanding checks.

"He looked like Bill Russell of the Celtics out there," said coach Moe Turner. "I hope he keeps it up for the rest of the season."

Upset, 81-61, by Neil Diron's charges Saturday, Chinooks took over from the start on Sunday, running up a 45-20 score at the half and coasting to victory.

Dave Wirtanen added 11 points and John Rouanion, 10, for Chinooks while Bill Richmond, with 15 points, and Lou Klassen, 11, led North Shore.

CHINOOKS (8)—Glen Moffat 8, Drew Schneider 8, Dave Wirtanen 21, Barry Turner 4, Greg Schneider 2, Al Glover 3, Bill Carlson 16, Mike O'Connor, Danny Wade 4, Chris Hill 6, Dave Beale 2, John Rouanion 10.

Next games: Wednesday — Montreal at Los Angeles; Toronto at Pittsburgh; Chicago at New York; Boston at St. Louis; Detroit at Philadelphia; Oakland at Minnesota.

Three developments during the past week are starting to have an effect on the National Hockey League's East Division race.

While Boston Bruins have regained their scoring touch, Chicago Black Hawks have apparently found a way to prevent goals and Toronto Maple Leafs have lost the defensive knack which had been making up for their lack of scoring.

Bruins remained in a second-place tie with New York Rangers on Sunday by handing the Leafs a 7-4 pasting despite the fact the winners were outshot, 42-25.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Boston club.

which as produced 22 goals in its string, and the second straight setback for the Leafs, who allowed 12 goals in two weekend games after yielding only 33 in their first 13 starts.

Meanwhile, Chicago Black Hawks grabbed a fourth-place tie with Toronto by blanking Minnesota North Stars, 6-0. The Hawks, scored on 32 times in their previous seven games, have allowed but two goals in four games since Dave Dryden was brought up to play goal.

Phil Esposito led the Boston attack with three goals but the game's big moment came midway through the second period when Ron Murphy gave the Bruins a 4-1 lead.

It was the first goal since the 1966-67 season for the veteran winger, who played only 12 games last season because of injuries, and he was mobbed by his teammates after he had poked in the rebound off a shot Esposito.

Hawks clobbered North Stars with Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita contributing no more than one assist each.

With rookie Fern Rivard balking Hull three times with great shots, Ken Wharram and Eric Nesterenko each scored twice and Pit Martin and Dennis Hull once.

In other games Sunday, the Rangers sneaked by Oakland Seals, 3-2, and Los Angeles Kings ended a nine-game winless streak on the road by defeating Philadelphia's injury-plagued Flyers, 3-1.

Flyers, who have defenceman Ed Van Impe and Joe Watson and forwards Leon Rochefort and Gary Dornhoefer on the injured list, were further hampered by the outstanding play of rookie-goaltender Gerry Desjardins.

Victoria Rink Tops 'Spiel

PORT ALBERNI—A Victoria Curling Club rink rated as a strong threat in Vancouver Island playdowns this season, took top honors in the sixth annual women's open bonspiel at the Alberni Valley Curling Club.

Dorothy Fukuyama, Betty Stubbs, Helen Edwards and Clare Duncan wound up unbeaten by defeating champion Flora Martin (Dorcas Hales, Marian Smith, Elsie Humphrey) in the "A" event final.

A North Vancouver rink skipped by Lois Weston won the "B" event and Campbell River rinks skipped by Franck Serjeant and Frances Kakoske won the "C" and "D" events, respectively, to score a sweep for visiting rinks.

Winners:

"A" EVENTS

Colts and Bratkowski Keep Packers Alive

Green Bay Packers, held back this season by injuries which stripped them of most of their experience at defence tackle and hampered quarterback Bart Starr, got some help Sunday and gained ground in their battle for the chance to defend the National Football League championship.

Help came from both the Baltimore Colts and Zeke Bratkowski, Starr's pinch hitter. The 37-year-old Bratkowski made good on his first eight passes and 18 of 24 for the Colts as he pitched the Packers to a 27-7 win over Washington Redskins.

Victory plus the 21-9 defeat handed Minnesota Vikings by the Colts moved Packers into second place in the Central Division, a half game behind Vikings with three games left for all clubs.

Packers, 5-5, play the 49ers in San Francisco, host the Colts and then complete their schedule with a game against the Bears in Chicago. Vikings, 6-5-0, host the Rams next Sunday, then play at San Francisco before completing their schedule in Philadelphia against the winless Eagles.

LAST-SECOND SCORING
Just as close in the race in the Coastal Division. Colts needed the win to remain a half game in front of the Rams, who pulled out a 24-21 win over New York Giants when Bruce Gossett kicked a 36-yard field goal with four seconds left.

Giants, coaching in on two fumbled punts, held a 14-0 lead at half time, then came back to tie the score at 21-21 with 42 seconds left. Rams then moved from their own 30-yard line to the San Francisco 29 in four plays to set up the chance for Gossett to make up for two previous failures.

NEXT GAMES
Colts, 10-1, host Atlanta Falcons next Sunday, then finish out with games at Green Bay and Los Angeles. The Rams, 9-1-1, play the Vikings away next Sunday and then are home to Chicago Bears before the schedule-ending matchup against the Colts.

Earl Morrill's passing, setting up the first touchdown and producing the other two major scores, enabled the Colts to take a 21-3 lead in the first half. Vikings did much better after Gary Cuzzo took over at quarterback for Joe Kapp midway through the second quarter but Colts came up with a brilliant goal-line stand and held second-half damage to two field goals.

Division championships were practically settled in other games Sunday as Dallas Cowboys increased their lead in the Capitol Division to two games and Cleveland Browns stayed a game and a half in front in the Century Division.

and the other points came on safeties. Oak Bay's lone point came on a safety. Chargers, third in the league, gained the third by defeating second-place Knights of Columbus while Invaders upset the league champion Esquimalt Lions. Haney Eskilinos downed the Knights of Columbus, 36-13, in an exhibition game following the league final.

Jim Turner, 27-year-old Utah State University grad who was signed as a free agent in 1964, set a professional football record on Sunday by kicking 13, 20 and 23-yard field goals to help New York Jets to a 37-15 victory over San Diego Chargers in an American Football League game. With three games left, Turner has kicked 31 field goals, 17 of them in the last four games. His third three-pointer broke the record of 30 set earlier this season by Ted Gervais of the Canadian Football League.

PREVIOUS RECORD
Pete Gogolak of the Buffalo Bills held the previous record of 28 and shared the U.S. professional record with Bruce Gossett of Los Angeles Rams.

Sunday's victory assured Jets of no worse than a tie for the Eastern Division championship. Defeat dropped the Chargers a game behind Kansas City Chiefs and Oakland Raiders in the Western Division.

Raiders pulled into a first-place tie with the Chiefs with a 34-0 romp over Cincinnati Bengals.

Chargers won their third straight Norm Fieldgate Bantam Football League playoff championship Sunday by downing Oak Bay Invaders, 41-1, at Carnarvon Park.

Gordon Conrad scored three touchdowns for Chargers while Barry Hoag scored two and Russell Batstone one. Leon Mitchell kicked two converts

Trophy Winners Include Dillon

Dillon

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defenceman Mike Gates of Portland Adanacs was named Monday as the most valuable player in the Western Division of the National Lacrosse Association.

Results by the division's four coaches were released by Commissioner Tom English.

He also named Vancouver's Skip Chapman as the most valuable goaltender, New Westminster's Wayne Goss as top rookie and Victoria's Randy Dillon as winner of the Maitland Trophy for the player best combining sportsmanship and skill.

Teams Jammed In Soccer Traffic

Dave Swanson, Joe Milligan and Mike Salls scored for UVic while Bill Hamilton scored both Tally Ho goals.

Action was hotter in the second division where Suburban Motors moved into a share of top spot as former leaders Watson's Hotspurs and Comopoltan Royals were upset, with a 4-2 victory in a riotous game with London Soccer Club at Central Park.

Referee Gordie Duncan had his hands full, sending off two players from each club—Mansel Ahlenda and Albert Lima of Suburban and Ken Sainsbury and Don Washaw of London—and contending with a sideline melee involving spectators and players just before half time.

Tillicums stopped Watsons, 2-1, and Victoria West blanked Cosmos, 3-0. In the other games, Colony Inn defeated Gorge, 2-1, Seanch Peninsula blanked King's Hotel, 5-0, Falcons trounced Adult Studies, 13-0, and UVic Norsemans downed William Head Saints, 5-3.

Next matches: Saturday — Oak Bay vs. Norsemans, Gordon Road; Crusaders vs. Sharben, Macdonald Park; at 2 p.m. DUNCAN — Oak Bay Wanderers strengthened their hold on second place in the second division of the Victoria Rugby Union by defeating Cowichan, 19-5, Sunday at McAdam Park.

Tom Watson, with a try and two converts, and tries by Rick Wolf, Ian Baskerville, Mike Bern and Brian Waddell accounted for the winners' points. Tim Lord kicked three penalty goals for Cowichan.

Amateur Boxla Body Approves Pro Rule

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The Canadian Lacrosse Association wound up its 40th annual convention Sunday, after what incoming president Fred Conradi of St. Catharines, described as a year of unprecedented expansion.

Vice-presidents elected from the seven provinces represented were Jack Fulton and Don Benson of New Westminster, Gordon McLeod of Edmonton and Enrico Caruso of Brampton, Ont.

The convention ratified the reappointment of Gord Hammond of Windsor as executive secretary-treasurer.

PROVINCES RETURN

Delegates from Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan, where the game has been dormant for 10 years, agreed to field junior B teams next season, setting the stage for lacrosse participation in the Canada Summer Games slated for Halifax-Dartmouth in August.

Teams from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and the Northwest Territories will take part in the five-day tournament at the games. The Canadian association also decided to adopt the National Lacrosse Association 30-second rule to speed up play, making it mandatory for a team to shoot within 30 seconds of gaining possession of the ball. A speed-up rule eliminating face-offs when the ball goes out of bounds also was adopted.

Retiring president Tom Gordon of New Westminster was awarded a life membership in the Canadian Lacrosse Association for his service to the game since the early 1930s.

Undeclared Victoria Nixon's while Wayne Lutz and Doug Kines scored for Comox. At Nanaimo, Esquimalt dumped their hosts, 7-1, behind Mick Peller's three-goal performance. Chris Witner, Don Elythe, Gord Warren and Bill Romaine also scored for the winners while Bill McLeod scored two goals for Nixons.

Cerrudo Captures Cajun Golf Classic

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Ron Cerrudo, the shaggy-haired rookie from California, fired a closing round 68 Sunday to win the $35,000 Cajun Classic with a record score of 270 for 72 holes — 18 under par.

The 34-year-old Cerrudo finished four strokes in front of veteran Charlie Sifford, who had a closing round of 67, and little-known Bobby Mitchell, who had a 68.

Another stroke back at 275 were Dave Stockton with a 69

Sunday, and Miller Barber with a 69. Cerrudo earned $5,000 in this final stop on the 1968 PGA tour. The money-winners:

Quebec Liquor Flows Today, Pact Ratified

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's more than 200 liquor stores are to open today, ending a strike by 3,000 employees that lasted five months and kept the province practically on a beer diet.

The Quebec Liquor Board announced today's opening after 1,000 Montreal-area workers voted Monday night to accept a three-year contract.

By their vote of 1,000 to 100, the Montreal-area QLB employees joined the majority of 1,900 others who made the same decision earlier Monday and Sunday.

MADE IN CHURCH

Ironically, the decision here to resume the sale of liquor was made in the basement of a church—in the meeting room of the French-language temperance society Lacordaire.

The voting was held in the church because of disruption by about 10 hoodlums Sunday of the originally scheduled secret ballot procedure.

While the Quebec Liquor Board's only comment on settlement was to announce today's resumption of work, a spokesman for the Confederation of National Trade Unions hailed the event as "a victory" for the strikers, represented by the CNTU.

BOMBS THROWN

It was a headline-grabbing strike from the start, involving some memorable liquor seizures and even some bomb-throwing.

The strike meant that liquor could be purchased legally only in bars and other licensed outlets.

Flying Back from U.K.

Dead Girl's Mother Will Give Evidence

TORONTO (UPI) — A 20-year-old woman, who until the weekend refused to attend the coroner's inquest into the death here Oct. 10 of her three-year-old daughter, has changed her mind and will testify when the inquest resumes Wednesday.

Toronto metro police said Monday Mrs. Diane McIntosh will fly back to Toronto from Glasgow, Scotland, where she went after the death of her daughter, Theresa.

POORLY VENTILATED

Witnesses at the inquest's first session last Wednesday testified that Theresa was kept for 12 hours a day last August and September in the hot, poorly ventilated furnace room of a suburban restaurant.

Mrs. McIntosh, who took Theresa with her when she left her husband last August, reportedly was living during this period with Michael Manelli, then a part owner of the restaurant.

The witnesses — employees of the restaurant — said Mrs. McIntosh would put Theresa in the basement at 6:30 a.m. when they arrived for work and take her out again at 6:30 p.m. when they left for home. They said the child was fed milk and rice pudding.

Theresa died of a cerebral hemorrhage two days after being examined by doctors at two Toronto hospitals. The doctors testified that the child has a blackened eye and a large swelling on the right side of her face as well as multiple bruises down the right side of her body. Mrs. McIntosh refused to allow the child to be admitted to hospital.

NEIGHBOR'S CHILD

The doctors said Mrs. McIntosh told them at the time that Theresa had been pushed down the stairs of her home by a neighbor's child and hit her head on a concrete sidewalk.

Beer sales in Quebec, however, are made in grocery stores and were not affected by the strike.

The largest seizure was $100,000 worth of liquor in Vanier, a Quebec City suburb, on Nov. 8.

COMMISSION NAMED

Eventually, eight persons were arraigned in connection with the Vanier seizure, including four employees of Melchers Distilleries of Berthierville, Que.

The Vanier seizure also resulted in the naming of a three-member royal commission to investigate the illicit sale of liquor during the strike.

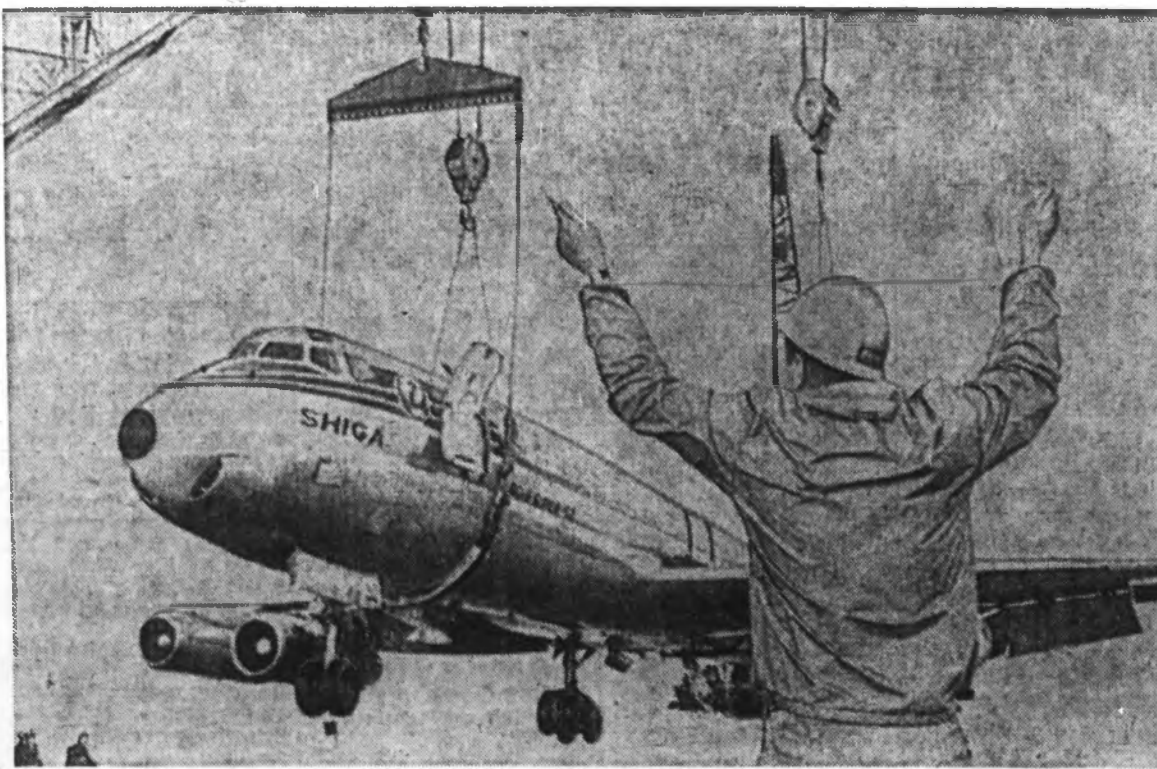

More violent aspects of the strike included the throwing of a bomb against the home of a QLB store manager and the firing of a bomb against a QLB outlet. But no one was injured.

Calgary Couple Held in Death

CALGARY (CP) — Julius and Julia Martisz, both 37, were remanded to Friday on charges of manslaughter and criminal negligence when they appeared in magistrate's court Monday.

No bail was set for the Calgary couple, charged with manslaughter after their daughter, Eva Ferenczi, 18, died in hospital Sunday.

Skyrider Almost Undamaged in Dunking

landed 300-yards off shore last week, but was practically undamaged. It was put on seaplane ramp and towed to airport.—(AP)

Six Shots Taken In Stride

SEATTLE (AP) — Robert Johnson, 33, of Wallingford, Ore., shot six times Sunday, including once in the head, was well enough Monday to walk around, hospital attendants said.

The .22-calibre bullet which hit him in the head didn't penetrate the skull, an attendant said. He was hit three times in the neck and twice in one hand.

A detective said Johnson told him he was shot by a man he met in a tavern.

Troops Near Biafra Strip

LAGOS (AP) — First Division federal troops have moved to within artillery range of the rebel airstrip at Udu Monday. The strip is a major port of entry for arms and Red Cross relief flights breaking the Nigerian blockade in nightly flights from Gboko and Fernando Po.

The federal forces also captured two small towns.

Peterson Hints Consolidation Of Human Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Leslie Peterson says he wants one major human rights act in British Columbia and hinted the government may consolidate several existing acts on human rights into one.

"It would be desirable to consolidate the several acts into one major human rights act," he told the final session Saturday of the B.C. commission of the international year for human rights.

"Any denial of human right in the province should be eradicated," Mr. Peterson said he opposed a Canadian bill of rights as part of the constitution because it would give the courts, not legislators, the final word on basic policy decisions.

H. C. French, administrator for the human rights branch of the Alberta labor department, told delegates a major obstacle to human rights is the distrust and skepticism with which the white man views the Indian.

Widow Awaiting Word from Dead

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Burnaby widow is hoping for a letter from the dead that will tell her where to find a fortune.

Amelia Wilson, whose husband Herb left only $33,263 when he died in August though he admitted stealing $16,000,000 as leader of a 1920s gang of safe-crackers, believes the money is hidden somewhere in the interior of British Columbia.

"I have no clue where—only that he used to go off alone to somewhere near Penticton," Mrs. Wilson said Monday.

SOME PAPERS

"I have a hunch, though, that he asked someone to hold some papers for him and post them to me some time after his death."

Mrs. Wilson said her husband told her to take his ashes within a year of his death into the United States which deported him after he served a 12-year term in San Quentin.

NEVER ABLE

"He wanted to show the authorities he could still cross the line, although he was never able to when he was alive," she said.

She said she plans to take the ashes to California sometime before next August.

Wilson, born in Pembroke, Ont., and 87 when he died, claimed that during a seven-year crime spree he and his gang of safeblowers netted $16,000,000 in the U.S.

It really moves.

Corolla's tough 60 hp. engine puts this Moving Wagon well ahead of any car in its class. The Moving Wagon cruises comfortably at 72 mph. That means you take on a big hill confidently. And you're still using only 75% of the engine's capacity. So you know there's more get up and go—when you need it.

The Moving Wagon not only moves fast. It can take a lot with you when you're going. Over fifty-three cubic feet of moving space when the rear seat is folded down. And the rear gate swings up high—out of your way. So you're not standing two feet away from the luggage space with mother's favourite chair.

You get more.

Like up to 40 miles to the gallon. And all the Toyota Corolla "extras". A big 3-speed heater. Fully adjustable front seats. You get an alternator. A double-barrelled carburetor. 4-speed synchromesh transmission. Windshield washers. And padded dash and sun visors. You get it all for a low, low price.

And when you're out on the road, the Moving Wagon still handles like a Toyota Corolla. You don't have to change addresses to really move.

Plea of Guilty Followed By Youth's Long Record

After hearing his criminal record of 16 previous convictions of false pretences and one of escaping custody read Monday to Central Magistrate's Court, 19-year-old Thomas R.

Mills of 1254 Pandora told Magistrate William Osler, "I am changing."

Mills pleaded guilty to three more false pretences charges, involving money and goods from The Bay on Nov. 8 and 9.

Magistrate Osler told him, "You seem to be pretty consistent in this, Mills," and sentenced him to six months in jail on each of the three charges. The terms are to be served concurrently.

Frank Peter Ellis, 50, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to being a vagrant and was sentenced to two months in jail. Court was told Ellis had been released from a two-month jail sentence only two days before being picked up again.

Tony Hunt, of 129 Means, was placed on a six-month good behavior bond of $250, after Magistrate Osler heard testimony from Jaqueline MacLaren that she feared personal injury from Hunt.

She told court he had broken blood vessels in her eye with his finger, hit her with a bottle and split her eyebrow, broken a glass in her face requiring three stitches to close the wound — all in previous incidents — but

Saturday when he again assaulted her, she had given up trying to live peacefully with him.

Fined $25 each after pleading guilty Monday to being minors in possession of liquor were Mark J. Clark, 20, of 806 Douglas, and Nicholas Hamersley, 19, of CFB Esquimalt.

Fined $100 for driving while his licence was suspended was John David Adams, 22, of apartment 436, 118 Menzies.

Garth D. Drover, 31, of 3066 Carroll, appeared Monday charged with arson Nov. 15, in connection with an $8,000 house fire on Dunsterville Road.

He elected trial by judge and jury and was remanded to Dec. 4 for a preliminary hearing.

Fined $50 each Monday after pleading guilty to consuming liquor in public were Hans Hansen, 21, of 32 Howe, and Robert A. Pearce, 21, of 59 Bay.

Fined Monday for impaired driving were Andrew Finney, 20, of 1157 Johnson, $350, and Roger Harris Lewis, 38, of 4251 Carey, $300. Both had their licences suspended.

Bank Clerk Chooses Judge Trial

PENTICTON (CP) — A 41-year-old bookkeeper charged in the disappearance of $492,000 from a Penticton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Monday elected trial by judge without jury.

The charge against Frances (Bambi) Shubin of nearby Naramata was changed from theft over $50 to unlawful possession of over $50, knowing it to have been obtained by commission of an indictable offence.

No comment on the change was made by either prosecutor Brian Weddell or defence lawyer F. C. Christian.

ONE JAILED
 Earlier this month Anne Kathleen Spiller, 26, also of Naramata, was jailed for three years for stealing $492,000 from the same bank.

She had pleaded guilty to theft over $50 from the bank, where she worked as a teller. The hearing continues.

U.S. Will Shut Pakistan Base

RAWALPINDI (AP) — The U.S. says the American air base at Peshawar, Pakistan, will be closed next July. This follows Pakistan's one-year notice to the U.S. last spring that it did not want to renew the 10-year agreement covering the base.

Printing Firm Rejects Poem

A printing firm has refused to publish one poem of a collection of poems of a University of Victoria student literary magazine because of alleged obscenity.

George Gunstone, editor of the Cowichan Leader, a member of Northwest Publications, told editors of the magazine ACRé he would not print a poem entitled Johnny Turns On, by fourth-year English major Mark Batterbury, on the grounds it was obscene.

Magazine co-editors Mike Hayne and Justin Havelaar, both education students, said they felt the poem had artistic merit.

They anticipated difficulty in having the poem published and submitted a copy to John Stone, the Alma Mater Society lawyer. He informed them publication Dec. 3.

Slow Learners Not Penalized

Report Card Rates Initiative, Respect

A new report card that tells what the individual child is doing instead of comparing him with others is being taken home by elementary pupils in Greater Victoria.

The "anecdotal" report card which has been used for several years in Grades 1 to 3, is now being used up to Grade 7, intermediate supervisor Roy Lister said.

In Grades 6 and 7 its use is at the option of the principal, he said, adding that most elementary schools had adopted it completely.

There are no letter grades in the new card. Intent is to assess the child's progress in terms of himself, said Mr. Lister.

Items rated are attentiveness, initiative, perseverance, carefulness, co-operation, thoroughness, responsibility and respect for the rights of others.

There is ample space for teachers' comments.

The traditional letter grade system rated a child in comparison with others in his class or all children in the same grade at one school, said Mr. Lister.

It was unfair to a slow child trying his best alongside children with more aptitude for a subject, he explained.

The new report card was prepared by a committee of teachers, principals and supervisors, said Mr. Lister.

Other school districts are also revising their cards, he said.

For Him, Everything Costs More

Only Farmer Not Showing Profit

OTTAWA (CP)—Everybody in the agriculture business is making more money except the farmer, according to a survey of the Canadian farm scene prepared by the economics branch of the federal agriculture department.

The review, prepared for the annual federal-provincial agricultural outlook conference which opened here today, estimates net farm income for this year will be below the 1957 figure and predicts that 1969 income will be lower still.

At the same time agricultural production is increasing and farmers are buying more machinery, feed, fertilizer and pesticides. Real estate values are increasing and interest rates on farm loans have gone up.

Total receipts for the same amount of farm produce will be about the same in 1968 as 1967 and higher in 1969. But the continued increase in farm operating expenses and depreciation charges will leave the farmer with less money.

Employment in agriculture in 1967 was 2.8 per cent higher than in 1966, the first time in years that the normal decline in farm employment was reversed. The decline is expected to resume in 1968 and continue in 1969.

Farm machinery sales in 1967 fell below the record 1966 level, but operating costs were 3.4 per cent higher. Total expenditures on machinery and equipment amounted to an average $3,069 per farm, 2.7 per cent above the 1966 average.

The same trend is evident in 1968 with farmers buying less machinery but paying more for operating it. An increase in machinery sales is expected in 1969.

Farmers bought five per cent more livestock feed in 1967 than 1966 and expenditures for feed increased 11 per cent. The level is expected to remain about the same in 1968 and increase again in 1969.

Fertilizer sales increased 27 per cent between 1966 and 1967 reaching an average of $2.80 per seeded acre or $465 per farm. The average was the highest in the maritimes with $12.40 per acre and lowest on the Prairies with $1.60 per acre.

Pesticide sales increased in 1967 by more than 13 per cent from 1966. Similar 13-per-cent increases are predicted for 1968 and 1969.

Land prices increased 10 per cent during 1967 but the trend is levelling off except in Ontario where prices are still increasing. The total value of farm real estate, machinery and livestock was estimated in 1967 at $21,186,000,000.

An estimated $2,179,000,000 in credit was extended to farmers in 1967, $233,000,000 above 1966 estimates. The amount of credit is expected to decline in 1968.

Honored

Canada Council announced Monday award of council medals for outstanding cultural achievement to poets Earle Birney, above, and A. J. M. Smith, architect Eric Arthur, novelist Gabrielle Roy and painter Jacques de Tonnancour. Birney, 64, former longtime UBC professor, and others get $2,500 each with prize.

Winners in the weekly duplicate bridge game conducted by the Victoria unit of the American Contract Bridge League on Saturday were: 1. Anne and Earle Dye, 2. Birdie and James Duprau, 3/4 tie: Patricia and John Bishop, Marjorie Powell and Joan Smith, 5. Margaret and Jack McAvoy, 6. Helen Samson and Joan Walpole.

Camp Lacking Political Aim

TORONTO (CP)—Dalton Camp said Sunday night his resignation as national president of the Conservative party has left him with no political aspirations.

In an interview following his Saturday resignation announcement, Camp said he is not bitter about personal election defeats and plans to forget politics.

"I never felt — nor do I now — any bitterness about those defeats. Anybody who takes politics that seriously is ready for a geriatrics ward."

Later Sunday, Camp took over his new job as co-host of W5, CTV's public affairs program.

GAVE OUT NEWS

He appeared first as a dark-suited announcer, giving the news of his own resignation. He repeated his resignation statement and added:

"Some bitter-enders in the party have been probably praying for this announcement, and I'm confirming them in their faith."

Opposition Leader Stanfield said in a statement that Camp wanted to avoid any appearance of compromise as either the senior officer of the Progressive Conservative Association or his freedom as a professional commentator on public affairs.

Stanfield expressed his appreciation for Camp's "outstanding work" on behalf of the party in the presidency.

Camp would remain a member of the executive as a past president.

Stanfield said he would continue to value the friendship and counsel of Camp which he had enjoyed for nearly 20 years.

Job Offer In House

OTTAWA (CP)—A back-bench Liberal MP suggested in the Commons Monday that funds be made available to allow former prime minister Diefenbaker to engage Dalton Camp as his executive assistant.

To general laughter, Barnett Dawson (York North) placed his question about Camp, whose resignation as president of the Conservative party's national association was announced during the weekend.

Diefenbaker, defeated as party leader at a convention last year advocated by Camp, replied:

"I don't belong to that Camp."

Eight Arabs Expelled From Jordan Region

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel expelled eight more Arabs from the occupied west bank of Jordan Sunday and lifted the curfew imposed on the Arab sector of Jerusalem after Friday's sabotage blast that killed 12 persons and wounded 55.

Israeli police reported no success in tracing those involved in the explosion. The Israeli cabinet met and announced it had taken "decisions concerning the war against terror." It did not elaborate.

The six men and two women expelled allegedly incited demonstrations and school strikes in the west bank area last month, Israeli authorities said. Since the unrest Israel has deported a score of prominent Arabs from the west bank.

In Amman, Jordan, a newspaper reported that Israeli authorities had arrested the leader of a Palestine refugee camp on the west bank and 10 teachers after a search of the camp.

Hesitancy Over Highway Places School in Doubt

By NANCY BROWN

Highway department indecision could hold up building of a new senior high school in Sidney.

Because of lack of information, Sidney council decided to refer to the planning committee a request from Saanich school board for closure of Mills Road for school building.

"I feel the highways department isn't too certain about the future of the Pat Bay Highway," commented Mayor A. W. Freeman.

WHEN A FREEWAY

"There's no information available from the department about overpass planning. I'm not concerned about present plans for the four-lane highway, but I am concerned about what will happen when this becomes a freeway."

Mayor Freeman pointed out that the school board was building a high school without any plans for safe highway crossing.

In a letter to council, the school board asked for closure of Mills Road east of the Patricia Bay Highway, so that a proposed school site could straddle the road.

'NEED ACCESS'

"Mills Road," said Mayor Freeman, "is the main connecting road with North Saanich. We need that access."

"If the highways department eventually decides to put an overpass for Mills Road, what would become of development close to the highway? Once we close a road and the area is developed, it's almost impossible to open it again."

"It seems natural that Mills Road should be extended on the east side of the highway."

PIECE OF LAND

Ald. Norma Sealey said she felt it was clear the highways department was planning a restricted-access highway.

"I understand," contributed Ald. Stanley Dear, "that the school board is negotiating for another piece of land. If we don't deal with this immediately, the problem will probably resolve itself."

The planning committee is to give the school board letter urgent study.

Saanich School Board

Student Radicalism Hit

Saanich school board took a stand Monday against university student radicalism.

The trustees approved a resolution deploring actions of student societies on both campuses and endorsing acting presidents Dr. Kenneth Strand at SFU and Dean Robert Wallace at UVic. (See Page 17.)

The resolution was prompted by the weekend mass arrest of SFU students occupying an administration building and subsequent statements by students and university presidents. Dean Wallace supported Dr. Strand and in turn was criticized Sunday by the UVic representative assembly.

Trustee John Armstrong, who proposed the resolution, said, "I feel it's time that individuals and boards have got to stand up and be counted. This sort of thing can have repercussions in the public school system."

Mrs. Rubymay Parrott said, "It's time someone made a stand. Maybe it's out of our jurisdiction, but it will show that a group of individuals involved in education are not prepared to condone this sort of behavior."

The resolution passed by a

Pay for Servicemen Sure Before 1969

OTTAWA (CP) — The pay increase announced Friday for members of the regular and reserve armed forces will be paid before the end of 1968, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux announced Monday.

He was replying to a Commons question by Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) who was concerned that the increases, retroactive to Oct. 1 this year, would not be paid until next year and thus be subject to the new two-per-cent social development tax.

Cadieux said he was aware of this danger and has insisted the lump-sum retroactive portion of the increases be paid before 1969.

Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) asked whether increases agreed to for civilian defence employees will also be paid before 1969. The minister said contracts covering most civilian employees are under negotiation. Only in a few areas have new rates been established.

J. Angus MacLean (PC—Montreal) asked whether the defence department is considering pension increases to retired servicemen.

Indian Centre Aided

About 300 people heard pledges of support for a projected Indian Friendship Centre in Victoria at a Monday night meeting in the Institute of Adult Studies. A start on funds was made with more than $200 collected.

Support was pledged by the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council, Foster Parents' Association, North American Indian Brotherhood, Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation, YM-YWCA, and a group representing the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

The United Red Feather Red Cross appeal campaign had collected $58,441 by 5 p.m. Monday. This is 66 per cent of the campaign's $855,000 target for 1968.

Ian Brown, 27, is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with burns received in a weekend fire that destroyed a house at 7074 Eustace Road in Sooke, owned by Jim Rittaker. He was burned while trying to put out a fire that started from grease on a stove.

Saanich council will "shortly be considering some limited land acquisition to protect Colquitz Creek and its environment," Mayor Hugh Curtis said Monday. Under consideration generally is the area from Elk-Beaver Lake in the north to the mouth of the Colquitz at Portage Inlet in the south.

Oak Bay is seeking legal advice on whether it is liable for faulty engineering of public works. The decision was made by a committee of Oak Bay council Monday night after it learned storm-drain and sewer pipes had been inadvertently joined at one location on Redwood Avenue.

Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien today will meet Indian students and a group of band managers taking a course at the Institute of Adult Studies. The 23 band managers from up-Coast points and the Interior are studying finance, communication, economics, law, human relations and community development during an 11-day program.

Challenge Heaved By Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Supreme Court Monday dismissed without comment a challenge by three Chicagoans of the constitutionality of the U.S. House un-American activities committee.

The three refused to answer question at a 1965 hearing on communist activities in Chicago. The high court also:

- Agreed to rule on the power of police to search the home of a suspect they arrest without first obtaining a search warrant.

- Refused to hear a complaint by Presbyterian churches in Seattle and Tacoma over the way a Bible literature course is taught at the University of Washington.

- Rejected an appeal by Texan F. L. Crowder, who was denied a radio station licence from the Federal Communications Commission because he had previously "trafficked" in broadcast licences for profit.

This year, the Gilbert's Javelin earned its stripes.

At Sebring and St. Jovite. At Riverside and Watkins Glen. Javelin successfully sorted out some of the toughest courses on the continent in this year's Trans-Am Sedan Racing Series.

We were a little bit impressed with the results of our freshman effort. So was Mr. Gilbert. Enough to make Javelin the new family car. And we think Mrs. Gilbert would be impressed, too. If she knew.

As far as she's concerned, Javelin earned its stripes on the way back from the supermarket. (Javelin is the roomiest car in its class.)

Javelin earned its stripes for visibility. No matter what the driving situation. No matter what the weather. (Javelin is glassier with bigger windows everywhere so it's very easy to see out of.)

Javelin earned stripes in tight parking spots. (It has a very quick steering ratio.) In fact, Javelin earned stripes just about every time someone looked the Gilbert's way. (It looks sleek. Period.)

Why not check out Javelin at the American Motors dealer near you soon? Enjoy handing out some stripes of your own.

Clear All 114 Or We Strike

Further College Scores

Campus life was still full of strife on several Canadian and world fronts Monday.

● In Paris, students at Nanterre University held two French aircraft executives as hostages but freed them and fled when police rushed to the campus.

The students had been holding the two in an attempt to bargain for the release of two students arrested Sunday for distributing leaflets.

They grabbed the executives after they showed up to lecture on their specialty at the suburban Paris campus where last May's destructive student rebellion started.

● In Mexico City, thousands of students streamed back to class at the University of Mexico, ending a four-month strike which led to street fighting that almost cancelled the Olympic Games. The end of the strike climaxed a week of bitter wrangling in tumultuous student meetings throughout the city.

● Students occupying the University of Ottawa's social science faculty will be offered a new proposal for representation on faculty councils in an attempt to end their week-long sit-in, said Dr. George Buxton, dean of social sciences.

He said a plenary meeting of all faculty professors approved by a 28-22 vote a formula giving the students one-third representation on the faculty's four departmental councils and the decision-making faculty council.

● "This is student power," said the red and white sign on a bulletin board on the fourth floor of McGill University's Stephen Leacock Building in Montreal.

The sign, decorated with a drawing of a white fist on a red background, appeared after about 100 students occupied the offices of the political science section in support of demands for a louder student voice in the section's administration.

● All Egyptian universities and high institutes have been closed indefinitely "to avert possible clashes" between students and police, it was announced in Cairo.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Another confrontation between the students and administration of Simon Fraser University seemed likely today after the student council Monday threatened to call a strike unless charges against 114 students arrested in a sit-in Saturday are dropped.

The formerly moderate council, in which students had voted non-confidence for not supporting the sit-in, took a hardline stand Monday, giving Dr. Kenneth Strand, acting SFU president, until noon today to act on its demands.

Council wants all charges dropped against 114 students arrested early Saturday by the RCMP. The arrests ended a three-day occupation of the administration building.

SENATE SESSION It also demanded an immediate academic senate meeting to reconsider the body's admission and accreditation policies, which touched off the occupation Wednesday.

A student-faculty committee to investigate SFU's administration procedures was also asked. If no action is taken on the demands, council said it will ask students to vote for a general strike and the resignation of Dr. Strand.

NEW POLICY On Sunday, Dr. Strand told a news conference he has adopted a get-tough policy with students. He said the university administration will not bow to blackmail, coercion or any bargaining whatsoever by the use of force.

Richard E. Lester, chairman of the SFU board of governors, said the board fully supports Dr. Strand's stand.

"The initial use of force by the students without bargaining is morally insupportable," he said.

UVIC WORD Meanwhile, support for the sit-in came Monday from students at the University of Victoria and from a handful at Selkirk Junior College near Castlegar.

In Victoria, students approved a motion criticizing Dean Robert Wallace, acting University of Victoria president, for a statement in which he supported the action of Dr. Strand to end the occupation.

AIMS BACKED The Victoria students also expressed solidarity with the aims of the Students for a Democratic University, which led to the occupation.

At Selkirk College, about 40 students of 500 enrolled boycotted classes. All of those arrested at SFU Saturday face criminal charges of obstruction. All have been remanded to Thursday and Friday of this week on $100 bail.

Coal Miners Walk Out In Protest

BLACKSVILLE, W. Va. (UPI) — Coal miners here walked out after the afternoon shift Monday protesting an alleged safety hazard, just 21 miles from Mannington where 78 men have been trapped by an explosion and fire last Wednesday.

A spokesman for the local of the United Mine Workers of America said the company had failed to fulfill a promise to rock dust the mine. About 170 workers are involved.

The rock dusting is a safety precaution to guard against explosions from collected coal dust in the mine tunnels. Without rock dust, spontaneous combustion could result from the fine particles of coal.

Methane, Carbon Monoxide 'Appear to Kill Hope for 78'

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Samples of air sucked Monday night from the deep recesses of a smoldering coal mine where 78 men have been trapped for nearly six days showed a deadly concentration of methane and carbon monoxide gas.

"You and I could not live in it," president John Corcoran of Consolidation Coal Co. told a news conference. He referred to air in Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine.

"We know the hopes are slim. Let's face it," Corcoran said. "The question now is how much longer do we go before the judgment has to be made, that based on all the evidence accumulated, that the very best job that can be done has been done," he said.

"We're not quite there yet," he concluded. There has been no contact with the 78 men since the first explosion shook the sprawling mine development Wednesday morning. The other 21 men on the midnight shift either escaped or were rescued.

AIR SAMPLES Corcoran said analyses of the air samples drawn from the mine through a slim copper tube nearly 800 feet long showed the mine's methane content to be 7.4 per cent. The tolerable limits for methane in humans, he said, is 2 per cent.

Carbon monoxide in the mine's atmosphere was 50 times that which it should be, Corcoran said. The limit for humans is 0.2 per cent, he said, but analysts showed the rate to be 1 per cent.

Corcoran reaffirmed what other mine officials had said earlier, that no more rescue teams would be sent into the mine immediately. He said the decision reached earlier "will not be changed, a this time."

"It's pretty evident that as every day goes by, and the situation doesn't improve, the situation grows dimmer," he said.

Rescue efforts took another setback earlier Monday when a small explosion sent a puff of smoke billowing from one of the mine's portals.

The pre-dawn blast Monday was the 13th at the mine near this tiny town and indicated to officials that fire still blazed in the mine's deep tunnels.

The first explosion thundered through the labyrinth of passageways early last Wednesday as the 99-man midnight shift was about to quit work.

Two rescue units poked through the mine's tunnels Sunday night and found no trace of the 78 who have not been heard from since the initial explosion. The eruption Monday ruled out the immediate possibility of sending in more search teams.

"As long as we have no assurance the fire is out," said Adler Spote, an engineer for Mountaineer's parent firm,

Brenda Rejoins Her Pet Turtle

'This Is Not My Daddy,' And Abduction Solved

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Brenda Ann Maquar, 3, came home to her parents, her pet turtle and her toy rabbit Monday from a five-day cross-country ride with a kidnapper.

The chase ended Sunday when her abductor, identified as Frank Willis Castile, 39, wrecked his Volkswagen near Toprock, Ariz., just across the state line from Needles, Calif. He and the girl were taken to a hospital in Needles, where she convinced doctors, "this is not my daddy."

The FBI said the child had not been physically molested during her ordeal, which began last Wednesday when she was taken from her stroller on a New Orleans street corner.

Robert Rightmeyer, special agent in charge of the FBI in New Orleans, said the child was safe, sound and unharmed.

He said the four-state chase ended when hospital authorities in Needles called police because the child repeated over and over, "This is not my daddy."

"They got in touch with the FBI and it was all over," Rightmeyer said.

The FBI filed charges against Castile in New Orleans of violating the federal kidnapping act. Bond was set at $100,000.

The brown-eyed girl, accompanied by an FBI agent and a California minister's wife, flew to New Orleans by a jetliner Monday. Castile remained in the hospital under police guard.

Castile was arraigned Monday afternoon in his room at Needles municipal hospital by a U.S. commissioner who ordered him held on $100,000 bail. Castile's condition was described as satisfactory by a hospital spokesman.

Brenda flew into her mother's arms and buried her head on her shoulder.

"Your turtle's home... your rabbit's home," the weeping Mrs. Maquar, murmured as she carried Brenda through the airport to a car.

"I didn't question her about the car trip," she said. "I don't think we should."

Maquar said his daughter at the airport reunion "was at first real quiet and real shy, but now she is really back to normal."

A crowd in the airport lobby recognized the family as they made their way through, and broke into spontaneous applause.

Mr. and Mrs. Maquar had complained that a wide-scale search was not started until several crucial hours after Brenda was taken from her stroller about noon Wednesday.

New Orleans Police Supt. Joseph Giarrusso Thursday ordered four police officers suspended for using "extremely poor judgment in not realizing the significance and the importance of the matter they were investigating."

But Monday, Sgt. Louis Schick, communications center commander at the time of the kidnapping, along with patrolmen Charles Giarrusso, Paul Bachemin and Morris Babin, were restored to duty pending final disposition of the case.

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The U.S. Navy announced Monday the submarine Dolphin descended to a record depth in the Atlantic earlier in the week.

"Dolphin has done her

One of a new breed of deep-

Dolphin, commanded by Lt. Cmdr. J. R. McDonnell, 35, made her historic descents 45

The ship, which displaces around 900 tons and is about 150 feet long, is about half the length of most subs in the U.S. fleet. It is only about one-tenth the size of Polaris submarines.

Soviet Scientists Dispell Doubts of Space

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced Monday it now can build space-ships to carry cosmonauts to the moon, and it said they would encounter no hazardous radiation.

An announcement in the government newspaper Izvestia said the recent circum-lunar journey of Zond 6 had found radiation between earth and the moon is "almost 100 times less than the permissible level" a spaceman can endure.

Monday's report indicated that the Soviets are far along the path to manned lunar flight. There has been considerable speculation here that the Russians may try to send a man toward as early as Dec. 8, the moon two weeks before the U.S. launches Apollo 8 and its crew of three on a trip around the moon.

The unmanned Zond space-ships apparently could carry men to the moon if the capsules were modified somewhat, the Russians indicated. So far Soviet spacemen have flown only in the Soyuz series of ships.

Earlier this month leading Russian scientists had expressed concern over the possibility that space radiation would make manned flights to the moon a deadly journey. They also said they feared other possible lunar hazards, but did not elaborate. However, the flights of Zond 5 and 6, both which looped the moon with five specimens and returned to earth, apparently have wiped out these anxieties.

Zond 6 brought back information that "testifies to the possibilities of ensuring radiation safety of spacemen on the way from the earth to the moon and back, provided that there are no solar turbulences at the time," Izvestia said. Izvestia said the flights of both automatic Zond space-stations had proved that man can be shielded from radiation, which could alter human cells, burn the skin or cause hereditary changes if encountered in sufficient doses.

Drug Charges Fill City Court

By JACK MYERS

An overflow crowd watched Monday as 12 young persons filed through the prisoner's box in Central Magistrate's Court to face charges of violating federal drug laws, as a result of weekend police raids. Charged with trafficking in marijuana were Edwin M. Perry, 27, and Robert B. Stark, 25, both of 4975 Cordova Bay; Hugh Blair Wilson, 18, of 720 Bexhill; William Robert Lowe, 18, of 614 Bay; David S. Suttie, 23, of 250 Gorge; Raymond Prior, 18, of 431 Hillside, and David R. Weir, 18, of 3005 Devon.

Weir and Prior are jointly charged with trafficking in marijuana, and Prior faces an additional charge of selling LSD while Weir faces two charges of selling LSD.

Charged with possession of marijuana were Ott Misler, 28, of Port Alberni; Wolfgang Nitsch, 24, of Ucluelet; Eric Joseph Clermont, 19, of 614 Bay, and James R. Page, 18, of 958 Heywood.

Page is also charged with selling LSD, as is Kenneth C. Moran, 18, of 1700 Emerson. Moran is the only one of those charged Monday who has elected method of trial and pleaded to the charge. He elected trial by magistrate and pleaded not guilty. His trial is scheduled for Dec. 10.

Those charged with possession had bail set at $1,000 while those charged with trafficking had bail set at $2,000. All were remanded without election or plea to Dec. 3, except Misler and Nitsch. They told court they were self-employed as fishermen and requested a remand to Friday.

All other defendants said they were unemployed, and most said they did not live with their parents.

Magistrate William Ostler asked William Lowe, "Don't you think you should get in touch with your parents?" after the boy said they did not know he was in difficulty. Lowe replied, "It doesn't really matter."

Besides those appearing in Central Court, three teenagers appeared in juvenile court, a juvenile and a 19-year-old appeared in Sidney court, and RCMP said two others were arrested and in custody in other communities.

Daniel Hagarty, 19, of 310 Windermere, was remanded to Dec. 2 without plea in Sidney court, on charge of possession of marijuana, as was a 17-year-old boy who was also remanded without plea to Dec. 2.

In juvenile court three boys, two 15 and one 17, and a girl of 16 faced similar charges. One 15-year-old boy pleaded guilty to delinquency by trafficking in marijuana and was remanded to Dec. 3 for sentence.

The other two boys charged with selling LSD and one charged with trafficking in marijuana, were remanded without plea to Dec. 3.

Supt. H. F. Law, commander of the RCMP subdivision at Victoria, said Monday six to 10 warrants are still outstanding.

Undercover RCMP agent Mike Onischuk of Alberta, who lived as a hippie for the past year, blew the whistle Saturday and 20 lawmen closed in with warrants.

Monday's defendants were only 12 of the 18 arrested over the weekend in various B.C. communities.

A large crowd of spectators jammed the second-floor courtroom on Fisgard Street and overflowed into the small outer lobby.

Every seat in the gallery was quickly filled and many stood against walls around the room.

A battery of defence attorneys crowded the long, narrow table in front of the magistrate's bench, where prosecutor Edward Pollard was kept busy going over the many information forms.

The only empty space left in the room 10 minutes before the court convened was the small bench in the prisoner's box, and it too was soon occupied.

Type O Blood Needed

The Red Cross blood donor clinic collected 120 pints Monday, leaving 210 pints to be obtained today if it is to meet its goal.

Type O blood is especially needed, a Red Cross official said. Clinic hours are 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. today, at Red Cross House, 1016 Fort.

Election Count Upset

The youth vote upset part of the election of officers held by the Saanich-The Islands Liberal Association Monday in Holyrood House.

An unidentified boy aged about eight years, at the meeting with his father, slipped a vote into the ballot box—unobserved—and the result was a tie for association president.

The boy's illegal vote was discovered during the counting. Officials ordered another vote and 20-year association member Robert Derrinberg was elected president.

Other officers chosen at the meeting, all without underage ballots, were William Bradley, first vice-president; David Elrix, second vice-president; George Preston, Sr., third vice-president; Cam Ellison, youth vice-president; Grace Moses, secretary-treasurer, and C. D. Robb, policy committee chairman.

Grant Helps Handicapped

The provincial government has made a $10,000 grant to the 3H Society which provides training in handicrafts for handicapped persons. Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy announced Monday.

The money will be used to provide services of an occupational therapist to serve 78 clients of the society, set up in February, 1966.

Mayor, Two Aldermen Favor Vote on Centre

By DESMOND BILL

Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen announced Monday he favors asking ratepayers to decide if the city should put up the money for a convention centre.

His sudden announcement was viewed as an attempt to counter criticism by alderman candidate Eric Charman of the proposal to erect a convention centre at the Empress Hotel.

But the mayor denied this, saying, "In my own mind, I've been in favor of a referendum on this issue all along."

'Running Scared'

The mayor's stand was quickly echoed by Aldermen Cecil Parrott and Percy Frampton, who are up for re-election next month.

"They're running scared now," commented Mr. Charman.

"Is it just coincidence that the mayor and the two aldermen seeking re-election should all suddenly decide, within 24 hours of my announcement, that they favor giving the voters a chance to express an opinion on this issue?"

Mr. Charman said that, until it became apparent he would base his campaign on opposition to city investment in a convention centre, there had been no indication the matter would go to public vote.

"First of all, the proposal was rushed through council and then, when there was a howl of anger against this, things were allowed to simmer down, obviously in hope it would not be an election issue."

"But now that all of a sudden the issue has bubbled up again, we are told by the mayor that he wanted a plebiscite on it all along. Pardon me if I'm not convinced," said Mr. Charman.

Mayor Stephen was reported Aug. 31 to have refused to say whether he favored a plebiscite on the issue.

No Turnabout

Ald. Frampton was reported that day to be against a plebiscite. He was quoted as saying, "We were elected to make decisions. There wouldn't be much sense in our going to voters and asking what they think every time a big decision had to be made."

Ald. Frampton said Monday his present stand on the question of a vote is not a turnabout in attitude.

He said it appears that the city will not have enough funds to put up a convention centre without borrowing, and this necessarily requires voter approval.

The tentative proposal involving the Empress would see the city put up about $2,000,000 for construction of the centre, of which approximately $1,200,000 would come from the McPherson legacy to the city and another $500,000 from the sale of the Crystal Garden site.

Remains Issue

Mr. Charman said the convention centre will still be an election issue. He said he will seek a heavy vote "to demonstrate to the voters that the mayor and council want taxpayers think of this $2,000,000 giveaway to the CPR."

In his statement, Mayor Stephen emphasized that the city is not committed in any way to the CPR proposal at the Empress Hotel. He said talks are continuing and, when a final agreement is reached, it should be placed before voters for approval, likely by next June at the latest.

Premier Bennett, who was there along with Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson to provide the official welcome, confided to reporters later that the participation by the youngsters was the biggest thrill to the governor general.

The premier, however, refused either to confirm or deny reports that Mr. Michener will declare a half holiday for all school children to mark his visit. He said it was something the governor general would have to announce himself.

A last-minute change in schedule had the Canadian Forces Cosmopolitan aircraft carrying the governor general and his party touching down at 10:15 a.m., a quarter-hour earlier than expected. However, it was nearly 10:30 before the aircraft rolled to a stop near the dais.

The governor general and Mrs. Michener were welcomed by Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson and Mrs. Nicholson, Premier Bennett and Mrs. Bennett, and a group of other dignitaries including Mayor Hugh Stephen, Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, Rear Admiral John Charles, RCMP Assistant Commissioner Gerry Engels, and airport manager A. J. Knowland.

and Cadet Chief WO Glenn Allan, 6858 Veyness.

The cadets, who started working on their project about a year ago, received their awards on their accomplishments in rescue and public service; expeditions (overnight travel and campsites); hobbies and other projects and physical fitness.

The vice-regal couple will be guests at a provincial luncheon in the Empress Hotel today after calls at the legislative buildings and city hall.

At 8 p.m. today a state dinner will be held at Government House.

Wednesday morning they will tour the Greater Victoria area passing as many schools as possible and visiting Central Junior High, Oak Bay senior high, Reynolds junior-senior high and Esquimalt junior high schools.

In the afternoon they will tour the provincial museum and the University of Victoria, Thursday they fly to Vancouver.

At 5:45 p.m. Mr. Michener held an investiture at Government House at which he presented four Victoria cadets with silver lapel pins and certificates of award.

The four 18-year-olds, all members of 2285 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, RCA, cadet corps, were given the recognition under the Duke of Edinburgh Awards scheme.

Mr. Michener is president of the national council of the awards scheme.

First Presentation

In congratulating the young men he told them they were the first cadets he had presented with the awards.

He also congratulated Major A. E. Sherwin, commanding officer of the battery; Capt. G. J. Michaux, cadet commanding officer; and Lieut. D. P. Florin, training officer, for their work with the cadets.

Receiving the awards were Cadet Chief WO A. N. Bawden, chief of Tacoma, Wash.; Cadet Chief WO Thomas Harrison, 2380 Cranmore; Cadet Master WO Michael Mason, 3190 Mars and William Hibbert, 1825 San Pedro, Mr. Hibbert, a printing department employee at Bapco, ran for trustee a year ago.

In Oak Bay, Mr. Crone is running against incumbent Dr. Carron Jameson, a dentist who has sat on the school board since 1962.

Esquimalt representative Leslie Karagians received his third successive election by acclamation Monday, when no other nominee filed by the noon deadline.

Two Saanich trustees were also elected by acclamation. Mr. Rubymay Parrott, who sits for North Saanich, and Sidney representative George Howard.

In Central Saanich, the contest for one seat is between Robert Derrinberg, 8085 Derrinberg Road, and Zachary Hamilton, 2918 Lamont.

Three candidates are contesting one seat representing rural Saanich on the Saanich school board.

They are Jack Hubbard, 4992 Lochside, a planner for the Greater Victoria school district; Stanley Oakes, 844 Royal Oak, a civil engineer, and Harold Jordan, 5196 Delmonte.

Sooke school district has a four-way contest for two seats coming in the inner Belmont sector.

Board chairman Dr. James Portelance, 2823 Glen Lake Road, is seeking re-election, along with incumbent Mrs. Isabelle Reeder.

Also Running

Also running are James Chidlow, 3672 Happy Valley Road, a firefighter, and former trustee Darvis Cook, 1076 Jenkins. Mr. Cook sat on the board in 1966-67 but was defeated a year ago.

In the outlying Milne's Landing sector, the contest is between Ronald Fitton, 6470 Sooke Road, and Alfred Raue, 6656 Horne Road.

Mr. Fitton, a radio-TV technician, unsuccessfully contested a September byelection. It is the first election for Mr. Raue, a retired building supply store operator.

The winner will complete the unexpired one-year portion of the term resigned by trustee Ardiel Wickham.

Robert Anderson, 2321 Sooke River Road, was elected by acclamation to a two-year term. He was first elected in September.

More Platforms

Vote Race: 44 Seek 23 Seats

A total of 44 candidates, only two of them women are in the race for 23 council seats in seven sections (Greater Victoria, ranging from Oak Bay to Sidney.

They filed nomination papers by the Monday noon deadline for the Dec. 7 municipal elections. A complete list appears on Page 34. Here are platform details for most candidates who have not previously given their stands:

In Oak Bay, lawyer Hugh R. A. McMillan, 907 Deal, one of two newcomers among five candidates, has opposed dumping of sewage in any form into the sea and apartments of more than six storeys. He favors swimming pools and artificial ice rinks outdoors in existing parks.

Incumbents Alexander Hendry, 3253 Henderson, and Ian Horne, 3550 Beach, agreed on opposition to commercialism in Oak Bay.

Said Ald. Hendry: "The residential character of Oak Bay must be preserved. I am opposed to any kind of commercial development such as hovercraft facilities and gas station development."

Acute-Care Hospitals

Ald. Hendry also hopes to see a referendum for acute-care hospitals early in 1969.

Ald. Horne said he feels the prime purpose of council is to provide essential basic services at minimum cost, and to retain Oak Bay as a prime residential area.

In Esquimalt, one candidate is from the newly-amalgamated Panhandle area, navy veteran Robert Dewhurst, 940 Garthland, who was a member of the Canadian delegation to the International Control Commission in Vietnam in 1964 and 1965.

Mr. Dewhurst said he worked for amalgamation of the Panhandle with Esquimalt, and wants to see a scientific solution to the problems of sewage disposal, so costly installations will not need future revision.

Li. Cmdr. Edward Alexander, 43, of 849 Rockheights, became an Esquimalt council candidate and said he would bring a lot of experience to the job.

He is a member of Esquimalt United Church, former president of the Couples Club, general superintendent of Sunday School Teen-Age H-C councilor, and a member of the men's Club, where he has served nine years as an elder.

Of his municipality he says, "I am keenly interested in the orderly development of Esquimalt and would like to participate in the progressive administration of this municipality."

In Saanich, incumbent Harold Todd said he feels it is time the regional board started buying land in the Blenkinsop Valley.

Colquitz Restoration

"The regional board has been buying land quite a way from the central area," he said. "It is time to consider buying suitable blocks of land where they would benefit more people."

He also favors a quick start on restoration of the Colquitz Creek and on the installation of sewers.

In Central Saanich, incumbent Thomas Mitchell, 3915 Island View, said, "I'm running on my record during eight years' service to the area. I shall continue efforts to keep taxes in line."

New to municipal politics is Howard Laatsch, 6278 Marie Meadow, a supervisory instructor for the defence department. He is president of the Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Northern Peninsula Hospital Committee. He wants to see long-range planning for residential, business and industrial building; extension of utilities on a local improvement basis; adequate sewage disposal systems; improved parks and recreational facilities for all ages.

Former Rossland mayor J. M. Gordon, 777 Harding, will seek the one-year Central Saanich council term created by the retirement of Charles Mollard. He said he would give the Brentwood Bay area a greater voice on council.

In Sidney, Ald. William Gardner, 2525 Shoreacre, a volunteer fireman for more than 20 years, said he wants to continue to serve on the Sidney-North Saanich fire committee and work for inter-municipal co-operation.

Last-Minute Nominations

Trustee Races Livened

School board elections in the capital region were livened Monday by last-minute nominations, including three civil servants.

One is Bernard Atkins, editor of Beautiful British Columbia magazine, a former Saanich school board trustee who is seeking a seat on the Greater Victoria board.

Another late entry was Thomas Crone, an ex-teacher and federal civil servant running in Oak Bay.

Harold Jordan, assistant supervisor of school construction for the department of education, filed for election to the Saanich school board.

This is the district-by-district summary of trustees' nominations:

SINGLE SEAT

The single vacant seat representing Victoria on the Greater Victoria board will be contested by three newcomers: Alan McKinnon, 1760 Rockland, an apartment operator and teacher in Sooke school district; Joseph Richards, 541 Dalton, a stockman for the provincial government; and Daphne Temple, 1243 Richardson, a housewife.

Two urban Saanich seats on the Greater Victoria board have four contestants.

Incumbent George Curran, 1861 Newton, is seeking his fifth term. Another incumbent, Dr. Donald Shorting, is seeking a third term.

Opposing them are Mr. Atkins, 40, of 4040-Wildkron, and William Hibbert, 1825 San Pedro, Mr. Hibbert, a printing department employee at Bapco, ran for trustee a year ago.

In Oak Bay, Mr. Crone is running against incumbent Dr. Carron Jameson, a dentist who has sat on the school board since 1962.

Pupils Reach Vice-Regal Soft Spot

Hearty Cheers Win Micheners

Governor General Roland Michener, making his first official visit to B.C., was "thrilled" by the welcome provided Monday by school children from four schools on the northern end of Saanich Peninsula.

Students from Sainsbury, Deep Cove, Sidney and McTavish schools waved maple leaf flags and cheered lustily among the sparse crowd of spectators that turned out in chill, grey weather. Mr. Michener showed his appreciation by shaking hands with many of the youngsters and thanking them for coming to meet him.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This is for Mrs. Merry-Go-Round, the woman who complained because she and her young husband were new in town and couldn't get any credit. You shouldn't be complaining, Girl, you should be thankful.

We married young, too, and our problem was too much credit. Every place we went we found people eager to sell us whatever we wanted — on time. The temptation to buy now and pay later was more than we could handle. After two years of married life we were so hopelessly in debt that our paycheques were spent before we got them. Worse yet, money troubles nearly ruined our marriage. Every week we fought over who should get paid first and we always ended up blaming each other for the mess we were in.

Shown in Black, White

In desperation we went to see my uncle, a very successful businessman. He showed us in black and white how expensive credit buying can be. In some cases the "carrying charges" added as much as an additional 50 per cent to the purchase price.

So please, Ann, when people write and ask how to get credit tell them to wait until they can pay cash. It's a lot easier on the nerves. — STILL PAYING.

Dear Ann: Some credit buying makes sense — such as the right kind of mortgage on a house — but your uncle's counsel contains much merit and is well worth listening to.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my boyfriend and I had dinner at a small place which serves wonderful Italian food. The couple at the next table got into an argument. The poor woman was obviously getting the worst of it. I saw the man twist her arm as he yelled, "Take that back." The next thing I knew she was on the floor. I don't know if he pushed her or if she fell.

Up to the Proprietor

I wanted my boyfriend to do something to help the poor thing. Instead, he asked for the cheque at once (we hadn't even had our dessert) and he pulled me out of there. I feel he behaved like a coward and I told him so. Please back me up, Ann. — EL PASO.

Dear El: Sorry, I don't agree with you. It's never a good idea to intrude in a private fight. Some of those characters carry knives or guns and are plenty liquored up in the bargain.

It was up to the proprietor of the restaurant to end the fight or put them both out.

Flushed with Success

Bathrooms Cause Federal Concern

OTTAWA (CP) — A manufacturer is being given $74,900 by the federal government to investigate "three proposals for the modernization of bathrooms."

The grant to Crane Canada Ltd. is being made under the National Housing Act.

It covers research and development of three proposals:

• $16,900 for the design and construction of a model of a "compact inexpensive bathroom in which the whole room would be used as a shower with compact arrangements for washbasin and toilet." The bathroom is intended for use in remote settlements.

• $20,000 to Crane's Ruff Plastics Division in Toronto to develop the use of cheap materials such as "grass or other vegetable fibres" in bathroom construction.

• $38,000 for design preparation by the Crane engineering group in Montreal of "new arrangements and new devices to make the use of bathroom facilities safer."

A press release from Central Mortgage and Housing said even with hand rails and brackets, "bathrooms as they are currently designed are inconvenient and unsafe not only for the aged and infirm but also for healthy people."

Painty Pants Mink Match

LONDON (UPI) — Suppose you're actor Richard Burton, and wife Elizabeth Taylor gives you a $7,000 mink coat. What kind of trousers would you wear with it? Paint-stained jeans.

The Daily Mirror pictured a smiling Burton wearing the coat and jeans and leaning against a stinging Rolls Royce. "When I like something, I wear it all the time," Burton said.

Labor in B.C. Rises by 5,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — The department of manpower and immigration says the labor force in British Columbia at the end of October was 799,000. This is an increase of 5,000 over the previous month and a gain of 18,000 over October, 1967.

Captive Consumer

Shopping Advised For Prescriptions

By NANCY BROWN

The captive consumer in need of prescription drugs should do some careful price comparison before choosing a druggist, says Victoria's Consumer Association president, Mrs. G. A. Forrest.

"We're not trying to say all druggists are crooks, but from complaints we've received it seems some are trying to take advantage of the fact that a person with a prescription must have it filled."

"A lot of people don't feel they have a right to shop around for prescription drug prices — they don't feel they should treat their druggist as a businessman."

"They should remember that even though they are captive consumers they're not bound to one particular place of business. A prescription isn't a sacred document."

Mrs. Forrest said one man who had phoned said he priced a prescription at one store and was told it would cost just over $9.

"He sent his son to a nearby druggist and just couldn't believe it when his son returned to say he hadn't sent enough money — the prescription at that place cost him $14."

Another complaint had come from an elderly man in need of glaucoma drops.

"His druggist knew he would have to use the drops for the rest of his life, but never bothered telling him the prescription would work out cheaper if he bought two phials together, or bought a larger quantity each time."

"He had to find that out by accident from another druggist," said Mrs. Forrest. "It doesn't seem very fair."

She said the Consumers Association will be preparing a file on drug prices in Victoria starting in the New Year.

"I would like to hear from anyone who has a complaint or compliment to record so that we can have a comprehensive file," she said.

"If a doctor asks for a druggist's name when he is making out a prescription, the patient should just say he hasn't decided yet where he will have it filled, so that part will be left blank," added Mrs. Forrest.

"If only people were more aware of the force they represent as consumers they could bring down many prices," she pointed out.

Maternal Girls Irk Managers

MONTREAL (CP) — An organization dealing with the supply of temporary secretarial help says most managers surveyed want secretaries to improve their effectiveness by excluding motherliness and bad temper from their business personalities and by acquiring more telephone finesse.

Births Decline In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's birth rate in 1967 was the lowest since 1944, the city's annual health report shows. It said 6,143 babies were born, compared to 7,558 in 1966. The report said the number of illegitimate births was about equal to the 1966 number — 16.3 per cent.

BRIGHTEN A PARTY PLATTER with creamy blue cheese stars. Beat 2/3 cup crumbled blue cheese, 1 (4-ounce) package soft cream cheese, 2 tablespoons each butter and sherry and 1/8 teaspoon paprika until smooth; chill. Using a pastry bag with fluted tube, fill seeded cherry tomato halves or 1-inch logs of celery.

BUTTERED GOLDEN ALMONDS lively with seasonings disappear in a flash. Saute 3 cups whole blanched almonds in 1/3 cup hot, frothy butter until golden. Drain well. Combine 1 tablespoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon each chili and curry powders. Add warm nuts and toss gently.

EXTEND A WARM WELCOME to all with these savory cheese wafers that melt in your mouth.

1 (8-ounce) jar processed cheese spread
1/3 cup soft butter
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1 cup flour

Combine cheese spread, butter, paprika and flour. With floured hands shape into 1-inch roll. Chill, wrapped. Cut in 1/4-inch slices, place on buttered cookie sheet. Bake in 400°F. oven 10 to 12 minutes. Cool on cookie sheet 5 minutes before removing. Serve warm.

EVERY BIT AS GOOD AS THEY LOOK are these party-special radish roses. Combine 1/2 cup soft butter, 2 tablespoons snipped parsley and 1 tablespoon finely-chopped green onion. Finely center of small radish roses with mixture, then chill.

A Lovelier You

Owner of Authentic Kilt Hero Among Copycats

By MARY SUE MILLER

A teen writes: "I have a real kilt, brought to me from Scotland. I love it, but it presents problems. I think it is too long, but my Scottish aunt does not agree. And my idea of what to wear with it is not the same as hers. I surely do not aim to copy a piper on parade. Your advice, please."

The answer: It's a lucky girl who owns an authentic kilt in a season filled with domesticated copies. In any case, kilts call for deft handling to look right outside their land.

As worn by both sexes and all ages in Scotland, kilts are turned at the top of the knee. No higher. However, you might wear yours a bit shorter, but not mini. Never.

A long-sleeved Shetland sweater and knee-high socks look great with kilts. Pick up the darkest shade in your tartan for both items. That way your kilt becomes the focal point, as it should be.

This autumn's waxy leather oxfords with chunky heels and jaunty tassled mocs make good footnotes. As a topper, you may elect to wear a tam — solid of color and sporting a toure.

In Scotland, classic, monotone tweed jackets top kilts on chilly days with dashing effect. Of course, you simply must have a big sterling silver safety pin to fasten your kilt — for show and against blow.

Major Study Eyes Birth Control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government's new centre for Population Research announced Monday a record study of contraceptives. Its director said the high U.S. birthrate was caused by "the enlightened middle class" — not the poor — who choose to have more and more children.

Dr. Philip Corfman, 42, an obstetrician and a father of four, said the administration has allocated $3,700,000 for contracts to develop better contraceptives and more information on population goals and other population social science knowledge.

The money was earmarked by Congress but Corfman, whose agency was set up last August as part of the National Institutes of Health under the public health service, said administration approval did not come until last week.

Corfman said his agency would hire outside firms and agencies to develop better contraceptives, probably seeking "a variety of methods suitable for various populations."

Corfman said the condom, in use since the 18th century when Englishmen made them from sheep intestines, is "still the most widely used method" of contraception in the United States even though its effectiveness is impaired by the necessity of "going to the dresser drawer."

He said the birth control pill is a close second and gaining fast, the rhythm method is third, the diaphragm, "which is a lousy method," ranks fourth. Among U.S. Negroes, Corfman said, the diaphragm is the most commonly used contraceptive method although birth control specialists rank its effectiveness as "next to not working at all."

However, Corfman said "contraception is only one portion of the population problem," partly because many couples purposely have lots of children.

In the U.S., he said, "our growth is primarily due to our enlightened middle class that chooses to have three children instead of two" and many that "want to have more than three kids."

"We can't go on like that forever," Corfman said. "The population people hope that given proper education and use of information and new or better methods, individuals will make choices consistent with national goals."

Corfman said no present contraceptives are simultaneously "effective, safe, inexpensive and suitable for various populations." He said the birth control pill is "effective but it's safety is in some doubt although it's the best method available to many women."

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merrill advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Oluy. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Jackie Influence Vivid In Cruisewear Show

MONTREAL (CP) — The strong fashion influence of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis was witnessed again Monday at a press preview showing of cruise-wear.

The collection by Montreal designer John Warden got off to a lively start with a parade of cruise-wear ensembles in a splash of flashy colors of red, white and blue.

Models dressed in sleek white pantsuits, smartly trimmed with rows and rows of brass buttons, white turbans wrapped around their heads and eyes shaded with huge dark goggles — very Jackie — twirled and marched before an appreciative audience.

Trousers in most instances flared gently from the knee down and ended in wide deep cuffs. Jackets fell over the hip and flared out.

Navy jackets, slashed deeply in back and featuring pocket and sleeve trim in white, were matched with pure wool white trousers all cut along softly flowing lines, leaving no masculine impression whatsoever.

The look was strictly one from the 1940s — even the makeup resembled the era of stage actress Gertrude Lawrence era.

Turning to spring coats, John Warden, who designs for Hudson's Bay Co., created a marine blue coat, cut close to the body and slashed with a strawberry red border from neck to hemline. Red turban and shoes completed the outfit.

Coat and dress ensembles in wool once again echoed the soft look with slightly flared coats reaching almost to the knee, complemented by solid wool dresses simply cut with just a hint of dirdid skirt and short sleeves.

Loudly applauded was a short evening coat fashioned in brocade featuring tones of teal champagne, grey and pink. Jewelled buttons opened to show a dress of matching fabric in the skirt topped with white satin bodice and white satin ascot tie.

Artificial Sweeteners Spark Defect Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal research project is being set up to check the preliminary evidence that the substance — cyclamate — widely used in artificial sweeteners leads to birth defects.

Dr. John Schragle, acting director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's research division, said results should be in about three months after the tests on humans are begun. He said the preliminary evidence that the substance — cyclamate — might break up chromosomes and lead to birth defects has been found so far only in laboratory and animal studies.

Women's Auxiliary to Handicapped Children's Clinic realized $1,200 at its recent bazaar. Mrs. Ralph Loffmark opened the annual affair and Miss Cynthia Dobell presented her with a corsage of pink roses.

Girls from CGIT of Douglas Street Baptist Church sold novelties they made themselves and members of Oak Bay Spade Club sold home-made candy.

Ceramics were made and sold by the children at the clinic. Auxiliary members in charge of the various stalls were helped by members of their own families.

Mrs. T. Hare and Mrs. C. P. Holden were general conveners of the bazaar. Mrs. L. A. Hamilton and Mrs. C. R.

Oxtoby were in charge of the kitchen, and served some 200 guests at lunch.

Miss Pat Hamilton convened the afternoon tea. Mrs. W. W. Palmer, president, announced winners of the various raffles.

Marriage Age Up to 21?

PRAGUE (AP)—By a narrow margin, Czechs favor raising the age at which citizens may marry to 21 from 18. The news agency CTK said 49 per cent of the persons taking part in the poll said the present age requirement of 18 years was too low, while 44 per cent said it was old enough.

Invention Ends Garbage Spills

Cameraman Irks Plain Jane Jackie

PEACOCK, N.J. — A photographer who snapped pictures of Jacqueline Onassis as she took a stroll in the country has been charged with trespassing. Authorities said she complained she had been frightened by the photographer, Philippe Poulipoulos, as she walked alone through the fox-hunting country.

side in which the Onassis family has rented a seven-room ranch. The photographer, free on $25 bond, said he met her on a road near the Onassis estate and conversed with her in French. He claimed she did not want her picture taken because she did not have her makeup on. Police said Poulipoulos broke away when they tried to catch him and was stopped after a mile chase on foot of nearly a mile.

His pictures were confiscated but returned. PARIS — Actress Sophia Loren has won a legal battle over her refusal to act in a movie she felt was unfair to her native Italy. A Paris court rejected a $700,000 suit brought against Miss Loren by a Swiss-registered company, Quadrangle Films. The movie, Five Pieces of Maria, was to have co-starred Danny Kaye, and was planned as a sophisticated comedy.

SASKATOON — Dr. Lewis Brand of Saskatoon, MP for Saskatoon from 1965 to 1968, has announced he will actively seek the national presidency of the Progressive Conservative party. Dr. Brand's announcement comes after the resignation of Dalton Camp.

OTTAWA — Energy Minister J. J. Greene, suffering from a "mild heart attack," will be in hospital for at least two weeks, an aide said.

HARVEY, 111. — James Phillips, a jazz vocalist who performed with bands conducted by Count Basie, Fletcher Henderson and Earl Hines, died at 57.

GENEVA — A Rembrandt painting worth $33,000 vanished from the Geneva Art Museum. Officers said they had no trace of the painting, a portrait of Rembrandt's mother painted in 1628-29, or of the thief or thieves.

LONDON — Twenty-two-year-old Pat Hart, Clayton, Mich., has been refused entry into Canada from the liner Palmyra, which docked after a 13,000-mile voyage from Sydney, Australia. Immigration officials told her she would have to return to Australia because she made the trip without getting a difficult British work permit, and had arrived without enough money to support herself.

MONTREAL — Funeral services were held for George Fosse, 92, builder of the first successful gasoline-driven car in Canada. Mr. Fosse, a former bicycle repairman, built the car in Sherbrooke, Que., in 1896.

CANBERRA — Australian businessman Keith Hyland, captured by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam earlier this year, was freed in Cambodia, an external affairs department spokesman said. Hyland owned a duck feather processing plant in Saigon.

PARIS — France's sixth and seventh heart transplant operations were completed at the same time as a previous recipient of a new heart died. Jose Fosse, 48, and Maurice Malva, 37, are both believed in satisfactory condition. Noel Molsonier, France's fourth transplant, died at Lyon. A 56-year-old American, Sydney Seidenberg, was also given a new heart in Baltimore.

Police Ask Teens To Bring Food

A Saanich Police teen dance will double Friday as a Christmas benefit, says Sgt. Bill Chisholm.

Youths attending the Saanich Police Organization of Teens (Spot) dance are asked to bring tinned foods to make up food hampers for needy families at Christmas, he said Monday.

The dance, at 8 p.m., Friday at Reynolds high school, will feature Meddy's People. It is open to all Saanich youths in Grades 9 to 12 or of ages 15 to 18.

Sgt. Chisholm said the club is considering a project to enlarge the recreation facilities at Elk and Beaver Lakes, with Spot members doing the work.

He said the suggestion came from Saanich parks and recreation superintendent Bert Richman.

The Old Forge
The Old Forge Nightclub is starting a new policy immediately. Because of expensive floor shows, our cover charge and menus are much too high. Here's what we are going to do about it —
1. Cover charge will now be only $1.00 on weekdays (the minimum allowed in cabarets by the B.C. Liquor Control Board) and $1.50 on Saturday nights, starting now!
2. We are offering new, streamlined menus which will surely please you—starting now!
3. We will offer you continuous dance music 6 nights a week with very short intermissions. Both rock and straight music will be played (and not too loud) for your dining and dancing pleasure. This policy will start on Jan. 4, 1969, when our floor-show commitments are over. But, the new menus are in effect now, so come on in and have a ball!

Marine Park Plan

Chretien Flies North To View Long Beach

Kiernan Meeting 'Useful, Friendly'

The future of Long Beach as a federal park was discussed at a meeting Monday between Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien and recreation minister Kenneth Kiernan.

Mr. Chretien called the meeting "useful and very friendly" but declined to discuss any details of the discussion. "I'm obliged to be quite vague," he said, because it involved "a delicate matter."

Both ministers, he said, now have material to discuss with their respective cabinets.

Mr. Chretien declined to give any estimate of costs or a date when the project might take shape.

Parks legislation requires that provinces acquire the land before development by the federal government develops it. In a park such as the Long Beach proposal, "economic development can be quite important," said Mr. Chretien.

He said that an ocean-side area would be much more difficult to develop than an inland site.

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—If he had to make the decision, work on a federal west coast marine park could start tomorrow, Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien told members of Uchuelet-Tofino Chamber of Commerce Monday.

The minister spoke briefly at a special luncheon at Wickaninnish Inn, following a tour of the proposed park area, arranged by Liberal MP Richard Durande and MLA Dr. Howard McDiarmid.

Mr. Chretien arrived at Port Alberni airport shortly after 9 a.m., accompanied by executive assistant John Rae and Chief Bill Munnell, federal parks officials, and MP David Anderson of Esquimalt-Saanich.

HELICOPTER TRIP

They were joined by Mr. Durande for the 25-minute flight to Tofino, where they were met by Dr. McDiarmid and more than a dozen chamber members.

The group transferred to a helicopter for a close look at both land and sea aspects of the proposed park.

Dr. McDiarmid said, during the luncheon, that his desire to see the creation of a marine park, to preserve the beauty of the west coast for future generations, was one reason he was pursuing to enter the political field.

'NOT NEW'

"The idea of a national park on the west coast is not new, but probably 75 to 100 years old," Dr. McDiarmid said. "However, it was about three years ago that Arthur Laing, then minister, said the federal government was prepared to go ahead."

"It is ironic that the minister from British Columbia was unable to make the necessary arrangements, and that it now lies in the hands of a man from La Belle Province to help us make our dreams of a national park come true."

Mr. Chretien told the chamber, "The west coast is to have a marine park, the time for action is now, not five or ten years from now."

"With a paved access road, even five years may be too late."

Parks, he said, are not built for the present, but for those who will live 50, 100, or even 200 years from now.

In an interview later, Mr. Chretien said: "We should be men enough to spend a few dollars now so this beautiful area may be preserved for the future."

Sleigh Needs More Toys
Santa's sleigh needs more toys. Response to Saanich Kiwanis Club's Christmas toy collection has improved, but the warehouse where the toys are stored still looks quite empty, according to Kiwanis president Stan Clark. Kiwanians repair and refurbish the toys and distribute them to underprivileged children.

The main obstacle the development of the park is that the B.C. government has not acquired all the land needed for the proposed park.

Mr. Durande said: "British Columbia spends only $100,000 yearly in acquiring new park sites. Vancouver spends 10 times that in park upkeep alone."

Dr. McDiarmid presented Mr. Chretien with a framed picture of Long Beach "to keep the project fresh in his mind."

Mr. Chretien also received a large green glass Japanese fishing float and a brick from the fireplace at old Fort Discovery.

He was given a huge box of oyster shells from the chamber of commerce which are to be distributed as ash trays to members of the Commons.

WHALING HAT

Mrs. Louise McCarthy, wife of Alec McCarthy of Uchuelet, presented Mr. Chretien with a whaling hat made of woven cedar bark, similar to that worn by Chief Wickaninnish before the white man came to Vancouver Island.

Mrs. Chretien received a shopping bag. Both items were made by Mrs. McCarthy.

Mr. Chretien may soon have another chance to sample Tofino crab.

He and Dr. McDiarmid made a bet on the Grey Cup game. If the west wins, Mr. Chretien will owe Dr. McDiarmid a dozen east coast lobsters. If the east wins, the MLA will ship Mr. Chretien a dozen west coast crabs.

SAME OPPORTUNITIES

Mr. Chretien said he had travelled 20,000 to 25,000 miles a month since July, mostly talking to Indian and Eskimo people.

"I would like the Indian people to participate fully in our society. I would like to see them have the same breaks and opportunities as others," he said.

The great need, he said, is for education — but not only for the Indian people. Non-Indians need to be made aware of the special problems which confront the native people of Canada.

Municipal Voting Dec. 7

Gold River Elections 'Instant Town' First

Gold River district, site of the "instant town" of Gold River, will hold its first municipal elections Dec. 7 along with most other communities on the Island.

The town, founded in 1955 to house workers at the Tahsis Company pulp mill nine miles away had its officials appointed by the provincial government until this year.

Three people are in the running for the mayoralty and 12 people are seeking election to six aldermanic seats. (See following nominations list.)

In other Up-Island municipalities Monday, three municipalities acclaimed mayors including Kay Groulx of Ladysmith beginning her third term — the second in a row by acclamation.

"I hope this isn't a trend," she said. "I think an election is a good thing."

Fluoridation is on the Dec. 7 ballot in three communities, Alert Bay, Courtenay and Comox.

Nominations are (x indicates incumbent):

ALERT BAY

Aldermen, three seats — W. C. Edman, Sherman Turner, acclamation. School trustee, one seat — xRalph Bell, acclamation.

Hunters Found

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Two lost hunters were found by a survey crew Monday about nine miles from where they went into the woods.

Albert Finlay, 26, of Victoria and his brother Grant, 18, of Calgary went along a Mount Lazar logging road Sunday and later were unable to find their way out of the woods.

Police were told that they spent the night under a tree. They were unable to start a fire because the woods were too damp.

Pedestrian Injured

DUNCAN—David Hilton, 28, 956 West Burnside, is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries after being struck by a hit-and-run car in Duncan Saturday night.

RCMP said he was found lying by the highway at Allenby Road at 2 a.m.

He was transferred from the Duncan Hospital to St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria after examination.

Safety Movie Needs Viewers

There are still 50 seats awaiting reservations to see the film Mechanized Death, at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Saanich courtroom.

Reservations for viewers over 14 years can be made by phoning Saanich Police. The film has been seen by more than 12,000 Greater Victorians as part of the Saanich Police traffic safety program.

The next showing after Wednesday's is Dec. 11. It is normally screened the second and fourth Wednesday of each month.

Buck-Passers Rapped On Housing

When an Indian wants help to build a house he runs into a whole chain of buck-passers, members of the Native Brotherhood of B.C. were told Monday.

James Gosnell of Nass River said that a description of how to get financial help was one thing, but actually getting it was another.

"It seems that an Indian has to have half a million dollars to get anything from the government for a house. Believe me, there are very few getting it."

PROFESSIONAL LANGUAGE
"I think there is something behind all this. We receive circulars telling us what to do, and they are written in professional language that nobody understands. We are not professional people. Why don't they write this stuff in terms people understand?" Mr. Gosnell asked.

Mrs. Diana Recalma of Qualicum said she had visited reservations at Alberni and Uchuelet.

On one she found a house, built by a contractor on the orders of the Indian affairs department, standing on green-sap-sopping piles instead of a cement foundation. It was a good, three-bedroom house, and it was sitting on piles sunk in the mud.

On the other she found a house completely jerry-built.

It had an inside chimney, switches hidden behind doors, and was a masterpiece of imperfect workmanship.

STEPS TAKEN

Why was this sort of thing allowed to go on? Mrs. Recalma asked.

W. G. Robinson, B.C. roads, sewage and water engineer said he knew of the house, and steps were being taken to correct the situation. The department now had its own inspectors, but it was "still woefully understaffed," he said, and some contractors were "completely unscrupulous."

Brotherhood president Guy R. Williams of Richmond recalled that the federal government had instituted a $12,000,000 program years ago that was going to bring Indian housing in line with the rest in Canada.

SAME STATUS

"It was hailed as the millennium in every paper in Canada. It was going to wipe out the disgrace of years and bring second-class citizens up to the same status as other Canadians."

"What has happened to it? Nothing that I can see. Indian housing is still a disgrace."

"And it will stay that way unless you scream at the top of your voices," Mr. Williams told his audience.

Mrs. Recalma said. It was sent again, this time to Premier Bennett and a "fuzzy" reply was received, she said.

'LIFE-SAVER'

Later, Mrs. Recalma said the bridge would be an inexpensive affair and could save a life.

The distance between the islands was short and almost dry at low tide. At present, all supplies for the all-Indian Kuper Island had to be ferried. If a child was sick on Kuper, and there was no speedboat available, he might well die, she said.

Mrs. Recalma said she had no wish to embarrass the minister or engage in cross-fire with him, but she felt that the question was fair and deserved a reply.

ANOTHER SHOT

Earlier on, she took another shot at Mr. Black when she said that all over the province, road blacktopping stopped at the edges of Indian reservations.

Duncan and Nanaimo were two good examples of what she meant, Mrs. Recalma said.

Why shouldn't Indians have the same roads as others when Mr. Black countered: "Just what do you mean by that? What's the name of this game? I didn't come here to be called a liar."

She said she had no intention of calling Mr. Black a liar or implying it. She just hoped that he would be spared a public retraction.

Later, Mr. Black said he could be wrong on the 50 per cent figure and if so, "I will stand corrected."

TWO VISITS

He said he could not spare more time for the Brotherhood because arrangements for his

Soviet Navy Stirs Fears

NAPLES (LAT) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization Thursday put into operation here a new command to keep a closer watch on the Soviet navy, with a warning that the Soviet fleet buildup in the Mediterranean in recent months has raised serious defence problems.

'True Facts' Promised

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, says he plans to write Health Minister Munro to give him the "true facts" about professional hockey organizations signing amateur players.

Campbell was commenting on a speech by the federal minister Saturday to the Atlantic Association of Physical Fitness and Recreation at Moncton, N.B.

CAN'T BE ALLOWED
In it, Munro called for the cessation of premature signings of amateur players, whether open or secret, by professional organizations.

"We cannot allow businessmen to buy and sell young athletes as if they were pieces of property," he said. "Hockey players are not chattels."

Campbell said in an interview Monday: "I'm sorry that the basis of his remarks on this occasion are unfounded. I am communicating the true facts of the situation to him by letter."

In Ottawa, Munro said Monday he included the trading of young players with the buying and selling comment.

ONE BALL OF WAX
"It's all one ball of wax . . . the business of having no regard whatsoever for the education of these kids and tying them into a professional association at a young age."

"I think that when a child is at school showing reasonable success there should be restrictions on inducing him into the chain that leads to professional hockey."

SHOULDN'T BE PRESSURE
He included university students in this class. A student in "the 21-year-old age group" should be able to quit university and play hockey if he so desired, but there should be restrictions against pressuring him to do so.

The government intended to offer these students alternatives by offering tutoring facilities and "other help of one type or another" if they played on the Canadian national team, the health minister said.

Medical Firms Want Details Of Spinal Aid

Royal Jubilee Hospital's recent spinal operation replacing a vertebra with a steel prosthesis has aroused world interest.

The operation is the first of its kind in Canada and possibly the world. Letters from eastern Canada, the U.S., Britain and India have arrived at Royal Jubilee, assistant executive director Clifford Brown said Monday.

Paraplegics and others have phoned and written to the hospital hoping the operation can help them.

NOT FOR PARAPLEGICS

Mr. Brown said the operation wasn't designed for paraplegics. In the two operations performed so far, removals of tumors or growths were involved before the devices were installed.

Sydney C. Ward, the second man to undergo the operation at Jubilee, on Oct. 28, is walking.

The Canadian Medical Association Journal has received a paper on the operation and is in the process of publishing it. The operation was devised by Dr. Fouad A. Hamdi and is still being evaluated, Mr. Brown said.

WORLD'S LARGEST

"The largest medical firms in the world, one in the U.K. and the other in the U.S., have shown interest in the device developed by Kennametal Ltd., the company's vice-president, A. R. Alexander, said Monday.

"There's still a chance we might modify the device," Mr. Alexander said. The concept wouldn't be changed, but perhaps the device could be made simpler to make the operation easier for the surgeon, he said.

So far the devices have been designed individually for the two people undergoing the operation. Manufacturing them in numbers would present many problems.

The artificial vertebrae, weighing about a pound, looks like two horseshoe-shaped rings 1 1/2 inches thick. They are held 1 1/2 inches apart by three struts, and anchored by stainless steel screws.

Garden Notes

Rotate Vegetables

By M. V. CHESNUT

In planning and organizing the garden, one thing often neglected by the novice is the rotation of the crops through the vegetable plot.

While rotational cropping may not be absolutely necessary, and while you may get away with growing the same row of runner beans over the same back fence year after year, it is only good common sense to move our vegetable rows around in a systematic planned fashion every year.

To get the most value from crop rotation, there should also be a rotation of liming, a rotation of manuring, of deep and shallow cultivation, and of pest and disease control.

Where you grow celery, you grow it in trenches. You dig deeply, and you incorporate all the manure or compost you can lay your hands on.

Now, no one has the time or the energy these days to double-dig the whole vegetable plot two spits deep, and few of us have enough manure or compost to treat the whole garden as generously as we must do for the celery.

But when we change the position of the celery row every year, automatically we improve the whole plot over a period of years.

Let's see now what happens here: The potatoes, noted for their ability to suppress weeds, leave the land clean, well cultivated and in good heart for the peas and beans that follow. The peas and beans, which can manufacture nutrients from the air, leave nitrates behind for the nitrogen-loving leafy vegetables.

The leafy crops, being well limed, leave enough lime behind for the carrots, beets, turnips and other root crops. But by the time the potatoes get around to occupying this section, the lime level will have dwindled to the point where scab is not encouraged.

There is another reason for rotating your vegetable crops which I hesitate to mention, for it has never been proved scientifically in a scientific sense.

Certain keen observers of plant life, including the late Dr. Galt of Leeds University, Sir Albert Howard of compost fame, and the novelist and playwright Louis Bromfield, all believed that plants leave toxins behind them, possibly through the exhalations of the roots, and that these toxins accumulate when the same crops are grown on the same ground year after year, eventually poisoning the soil for that particular species of plant.

The same principle holds for liming. The leafy vegetables need a heavy dressing of lime, the peas and beans a light dressing, and the potatoes no lime at all.

By rotating the crops, lime is applied where it is most needed, and the potatoes, which develop scabby skins in freshly limed soil, won't suffer in this way. At the same time, the whole plot is never allowed to become too acid.

It seems foolish in the extreme to go on planting cabbages and sprouts on a piece of ground known to be infected with the club root disease when, by carrying out a four-course rotation, that particular strip of land would have a three-year rest from members of the cabbage family, and the club root disease organisms in the soil would have nothing to feed upon during this period.

One good plan is to divide the vegetable plot into four sections, A, B, C and D. Plant potatoes on A, peas and beans on B, cabbage and lettuce and other leafy crops on C, and root crops other than potatoes on D.

The following year we play a game of Musical Chairs with our crops; each crop moves up one section. Section A gets peas and beans, B gets leafy crops, C gets root crops and D is reserved for potatoes.

While this has never been proved or disproved, there DOES seem to be a case for saying that soils can become cauliflower-sick or strawberry-sick, or any other kind of sick. From my own experience, I know it is the height of folly to plant a rose, a peony or a rhododendron in the same hole from which the same kind of plant has just been removed.

ART BUCHWALD Aids Defence Fund

Nixon Backers Face Trial

WASHINGTON — My friend Rumpelmeier, the arch-Democrat, called me up the other day with a surprise request.

He wanted me to contribute to a "defence fund" for the Republicans who may be prosecuted under the Corrupt Practices Act for failure to meet the deadline on their reports of contributors to the Nixon-Agnew campaign.

"But Rumpelmeier," I said, "why are you getting involved in this?"

"I believe in it," Rumpelmeier said. "Nixon and Agnew ran on a law and order platform and they vowed to prosecute anyone who breaks the law."

"If they follow through on their pledge, then the first thing the new attorney general will have to do is take the people who raised money for Nixon and Agnew to trial."

"But surely," Rumpelmeier said, "Nixon wouldn't prosecute his own people for what was probably an administrative oversight. After all, it's just politics."

"That's what you say, but Nixon and Agnew specifically said they would not tolerate any monkeying around with the law."

They promised if they were elected that there would no longer be some laws for people to obey, and others that they didn't have to obey.

"They won't have any choice but to see that the men who failed to file their reports feel the full weight of our judicial system. Now, how much can you pledge to the defence fund?"

"Wait a minute, Rumpelmeier. No court in the land is going to convict men for being tardy in handing in political contribution reports."

"I'd like to think so," Rumpelmeier said. "But both Nixon and Agnew said during their campaigns that one of the big issues in our land was that the courts were too lenient on criminals, and that you don't prevent crime by letting people who break the law get off scot-free."

"I can't see where Nixon could do anything but lower the boom in his fund-raising."

"You know, Rumpelmeier," I said, "I'm always willing to give for a good cause, but even if the committee chairman were tried, what could they get?"

"The law says they could get as much as a $10,000 fine and up to two years in jail," Rumpelmeier said. "Even as a Democrat I don't think a Republican should have to do time for putting Nixon in the White House."

"I believe you're over-reacting, Rumpelmeier. This whole thing will probably fade away."

"Not if Nixon gets a new attorney general. Don't you understand? The Nixon administration is trying to dramatize the issue of law and order."

"What better way to do it than to have the new attorney general try as his first case 'the people versus the Nixon-Agnew fund-raising committees'?" I said. "It would show beyond a shadow of a doubt that the new administration means business."

"I figure if we can get the defence fund started now, the poe-guys responsible for the reports will have a better chance."

"You've got a good year, Rumpelmeier," I said. "Who would have ever thought that you would be concerned with Republican fund-raising going to jail?"

"I wouldn't have gotten involved," Rumpelmeier said. "but I'm concerned with justice, and Agnew refused to talk about justice during the campaign. He said people either have to obey the law or see that it's changed. That doesn't give the fund-raisers any place to go."

"Okay, Rumpelmeier. Put me down for $50. If you're man enough to raise money for your defence fund, then I don't see any reason why I shouldn't kick in. By the way, what do you think the defence will be?"

"We're going to claim it was a crime of passion."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Author Extends Title

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Barbara Parkins will star in the sequel to Valley of the Dolls. And you'll never guess what they are calling it — Jacqueline Suzanne's Beyond the Valley of the Dolls. Try getting that on the marquee. They just want you to be sure whose Beyond the Valley of the Dolls it is. The first script didn't turn out so hot, and now Miss Suzanne will put her sharp pen to the project. Her husband, Irving Massfield, is producing and the Massfields want to be sure they don't rush out with any old thing. Apart from Miss Parkins the cast will be entirely new. It would have to be. Most of the original players died in the original best selling story.

The story behind the Lauren Bacall-Jason Robards, Jr., break-up — one of the stories, let's say — is that Jason ultimately blew his top over the mystique and idolatry centred on his wife's first husband, the late Humphrey Bogart. It must be hard on the second husband, Elizabeth Taylor, for one, has kept her glowing accounts of the marriage to Mike Todd, to a minimum.

More inter-racial film stories are on the way — Dino De Laurentis doesn't beat around the bush — he's calling it Black and White. American-International has Three in the Attic. Joanna features a love story between Genevieve Waite and the best looking Negro I have ever seen on or off the screen. There is something in Skiddoo. And in 100 Rifles, ex-football champ Jim Brown has a love affair with sexy Raquel Welch — on screen only. Off, they barely tossed a civil word to each other.

A case of life imitating art. Robert Evans' first acting job was playing Irving Thalberg. Now he is playing Irving at Paramount, in charge of production.

Unpredictable Tony Curtis, who is not famous for being nice to press agents or the press, wrote a letter to Darryl Zanuck, Jonas Rosenfeld and other department heads at 20th Century-Fox, thanking them for knocking themselves out to make a hit of The Boston Strangler. The studio expects the Gerald Frank best seller to be a bigger hit for the studio than even The Detective — the Frank Sinatra starrer has made a mint for Fox.

Marty Ransohoff has been huddling with Sean Connery about playing the other leading man's role in Tapsan. Pat McGowan, as I previously reported, is already set. Sean had been up for a starring role in Joe Station Zebra. Previous commitments made this impossible, however, so Ransohoff gave the role to McGowan, who is now being talked of for an Oscar nomination.

In view of the good talk about the film version of Harold Pinter's The Birthday Party, it is ironic to recall that when it first appeared in England — I'm not sure if it ever reached the West End of London — it was laughed off stage. You never know, do you?

Elite Police 'Seal' Franc Borders

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle received hopeful reports from money markets Monday on his decision to keep the franc intact, and backed up his gamble by sending France's toughest shock police to block any outward flow of currency.

While stocks and the franc were moving up on the re-opened Paris exchanges, and the franc firmed in Zurich, de Gaulle ordered squads of the black-capped Compagnie Repub-licaine de Securite, France's elite police, to the nation's borders. They will help enforce a series of severe new exchange regulations.

Buttressed for two weeks in a storm of speculation, the franc reached its highest level since the May-June crisis. There was some upward movement on other money markets in Europe. This seemed to French officials to reflect confidence in de Gaulle's program for escaping devaluation by "taking hold of ourselves" at home. Reaction from foreign capitals, however, was still cautious with some bankers still maintaining restrictions on trading their francs. No one was willing to say that the crisis was near an end.

No good reading emerged on an important barometer: The return of French cash to France. Most financial observers feel the franc cannot be considered sound until a pattern develops over a period of months showing that the francs have returned home. There was a rush in Frankfurt to buy United States dollars in exchange for marks, now that the West German government has made clear it will not revalue the mark upward.

The West German bank gold about $350,000,000 U.S., taking marks in exchange. The U.S. dollar was at 3.9795 to the mark, compared with last week's low of 3.97. Dealers said foreign speculators were converting marks back into dollars with revaluation of the mark now ruled out.

In Zurich, home of hard-headed Swiss bankers, the franc and the dollar both closed higher. The dollar was quoted at 4.2680 Swiss francs, up from last Friday's close of 4.2650. Demand sent the price of Swiss francs upward to 86.67 to 100 French francs, compared with 86.44 when trading in francs was suspended last Wednesday to check speculation.

There was brisk trading in gold both in Paris and Zurich. The Paris gold market sold $2,560,000, compared with $4,700,000 last Tuesday. One kilogram—2.2 pounds—sold at $1,348, up from $1,289 last week. The sales suggested some lingering lack of confidence in the franc. Turnover in Zurich was eight tons, well above the six-ton average.

The franc was quoted in Paris at 4.9575-4.9600 to the dollar after reaching 4.974 last week. The official price is 4.937, about 20 cents to the dollar.

Despite the upturn in the franc, there was some nervousness in West Germany as to France's monetary measures. Said one dealer: "The money market is in a very high state of

Others Trapped?

Couple Dies Under Slide

NATAL (CP)—Two bodies were recovered Monday from 500,000 tons of muck, rock and mine waste which thundered across the southern Trans-Canada Highway Sunday morning. Searchers say they fear "there may be other victims."

U.S. Advised

Saigon Ready To Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government has informed the United States that it is ready to join in the expanded Paris peace talks with Hanoi and the Viet Cong, U.S. officials said Monday night.

These officials said the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu was expected to announce within the next day or two its willingness to drop the boycott of the proposed talks.

The negotiations were agreed upon by Hanoi and Washington as part of the formula which included the halt of bombing in North Vietnam.

AFTER MEETING

The report came after Thieu held a meeting with his national security council in Saigon, and as the Viet Cong announced in Paris it would hold a news conference Wednesday to outline its stand on the negotiations.

U.S. officials said Thieu indicated willingness to participate in the Paris negotiations after Washington gave him strong assurances that Saigon would be given a leading role on the allied side of the table.

Chosen?

Persistent reports in Washington, D.C., say Henry Cabot Lodge is choice of President-elect Richard Nixon to succeed Averell Harriman as chief U.S. negotiator in Vietnam talks at Paris. Lodge, 66, twice was U.S. ambassador to Vietnam and was Nixon's running-mate in 1960.

"There could be other victims trapped," an RCMP spokesman said.

The bodies of John Louis LaPaire, 47, of the Vancouver suburb of Coquitlam, and his wife Shirley Elaine, 46, were found in their late-model car under 15 feet of debris by crews of bulldozers and other earth-movers.

The slide, which covered about 600 feet of the highway to a depth of 30 to 40 feet, occurred 375 miles east of Vancouver, and about 10 miles from the British Columbia-Alberta boundary.

CHROME FIRST

Verne DeCoux of Blairmore, Alta., was present when the couple was found. He said rescue workers found pieces of chrome from the crushed vehicle and started digging by hand to find the occupants. A small brown dog also was found dead inside the car, he said.

The slide was caused by an underground stream that loosened the waste material, accumulated on the side of a dome-shaped mountain about 4,000 feet high.

DEBRIS SPILLS OVER

Witnesses said the debris fell into a small ravine beside the highway, climbed up the other side and poured over the road.

Remaining waste material that hung precariously over rescue workers Sunday was blasted away Monday.

G. E. Balsley, general manager of Kaiser Coal Corp., which owns a strip-mining coal operation near the site of the slide, said the debris was "overburden" from the mining operation.

BUILDING UP

He said the wastes had been accumulating on the mountain-side for at least two years. Mr. Balsley said the pile was begun by Crownest Industries Ltd. before Kaiser purchased the property last March.

He said a contractor had inspected the pile about three weeks ago and reported it safe. J. W. Peck, chief mines inspector for B.C., said no regulations exist for inspection of mine waste heaps in the province.

EARLIER SLIDE

"It's not really anybody's responsibility," he said. A smaller slide at the same spot earlier this year brought rocks within a few feet of the highway.

The car was found about 100 feet from the west end of the slide. Heavy rain fell in the area most of last week, contributing to the weakening of the overburden pile.

SAFETY STUDY

Mr. Peck said the question of the safety of such heaps has been under consideration by a committee set up by the federal government. He said a provincial mines inspector will study the slide area today.

The strip mining operation is part of a $45,000,000 contract Kaiser has with Japanese steel interests. Coal from southeastern B.C. will be shipped to Japan via rail through the Roberts Bank port.

Ontarians Seek Pioneer Life

Goal—A Utopia in B.C.

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-three persons, ranging from a retired engineer to a 15-year-old student, met Sunday to discuss plans for carving out a new society in the B.C. wilds.

Advertising man Angus Cherrington, 35, a former British army officer, ran an ad in local newspapers about a month ago inviting people who wanted a different way of life to join him in the venture.

Cherrington, who has been nursing the dream of forming a Utopia for 15 years, said his organization hopes to establish a new society within the next three or four years somewhere along the B.C. coast. He has applied for a charter in the name of the Canada

New Pioneer Foundation, a non-profit educational group. He expects 1,000 applications after a meeting Dec. 15 at which plans for publicity and recruitment will be made.

Cherrington, who thinks our planet is in serious trouble, said he is not dropping out of society: "I am unplugging at one level and plugging in at another. I am still part of society and I owe something to that society."

Believing "there must be another way to live," Cherrington plans to go to B.C. next fall to make tests and surveys. The actual site will not be chosen for two or three years. Participants in the plan will have to take courses and train for the pioneer life they will lead, he said.

From UPI, CP

The British Parliament overrode charges and catcalls from the Conservative opposition Monday night and gave Prime Minister Wilson authority to carry out his tough new austerity program of tax increases and import curbs.

The rank and file of Wilson's Labor party backed his program designed to pull the nation out of its economic crisis and beat down a Conservative measure motion in a 328-251 vote.

See also Pages 5, 9.

The motion sought to censure the Labor government for its handling of the money crisis. The British government won as President Charles de Gaulle struggled to impose even tougher austerity measures on a balky French nation.

A threatened revolt by the Labor party's left wing fizzled out after Wilson told a crowded party caucus in a committee room that Conservatives were "an opportunity faction" seeking only to gain power for themselves.

AID PLEDGED

Meanwhile West Germany, whose economy is the strongest in Europe, pledged to do "all in its power" to help stabilize the French franc.

The announcement came as speculators stopped trading francs and other currencies for the Deutschmark after last week's massive rush to German money.

HOT MONEY

A government spokesman, Conrad Ahlers, attributed the reduction in speculative "hot money" to West Germany's announced "emergency" tax measures designed to increase imports and reduce Germany's tremendous export trade.

In Washington, Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler said the U.S. should be "lucid" in its economic dealings with the French to help the de Gaulle government recover from the crisis of the franc.

At a news conference, Fowler

Door Locked Outside At Fatal Fire Scene

BEAUVAIS, France (UPI)—The government Monday ordered an inquiry into a fire that killed 14 mentally-retarded children in a privately-owned mental institution classed as substandard because the owners ignored a 1962 order to build a fire escape.

Police said the institution also had no fire extinguishers or hydrants and the children died in a dormitory whose door was locked from the outside while the owners were away.

Christmas Meaning Not the Same

By DON COLLINS

Go into the streets and ask them what Christmas means. They will tell you many things.

The portly gentleman with the long cigar will tell you it means he has to spend more money than he would like to spend. But it would take a lot of spending to hurt him.

The young man waiting for the bus says it means his brothers will come home from Vancouver and Edmonton to a warm family reunion.

To the attractive woman

shopper it will mean the smiles on the faces of her two healthy children as they unwrap present after present beside the Christmas tree in their well-appointed home.

The grinning high school boy says: "I can almost smell that turkey and taste it now. Man, I'm gonna eat 'til I can't move. I always do. But who doesn't at Christmas time?"

Dies at 90

Famed U.S. novelist Upton Sinclair, whose 62-year battle for social justice began with anti-meatpacking industry book, 'The Jungle', in 1906, died Monday at 90 in Board Brook, N.J. Sinclair ran for governor of California in 1930s as End-Poverty candidate but lost by small margin, mainly due to opposition of news magnate William Randolph Hearst.—(AP)

The stock and bond markets are becoming so inured to assassinations, war, peace, domestic revolution, gold panics and runs on currency, that nothing seems to disturb them. The actions of the weekend spoke volumes. The monetary experts said that if France did not devalue the franc the international monetary system would crumble.

Northern Island Areas

Tuberculosis Surveys Made To Combat Case Increase

COMOX — An increase in the number of tuberculosis cases in the northern areas of the Island has been reported this week by health officials.

At a meeting of the Upper Island Union board of health, it was reported community surveys had been organized to deal with fresh cases.

DENTAL PROGRAM

Considerable discussion at the meeting centred on the dental program where more adequate professional supervision was requested for the isolated areas of the province.

The importance of fluoridation of community water supplies as the most valuable preventive measure to combat tooth decay was emphasized.

The members of the board expressed the hope fluoridation plebiscites to be held shortly in Courtenay, Comox and Alert Bay would be successful.

It was hoped to organize a screening program for hearing directed to preschool children early in the New Year.

A physiotherapist had been taken on staff to assist in the home nursing program.

Recent requirements relating to sewage disposal systems for municipalities as detailed by Health Minister Loftmark were discussed, and the proposed regulations to control air pollution were described.

The purpose of the poison control centre recently established in Comox and Campbell River hospitals were discussed and the aims of the educational program described.

World Eyes New School

GOLD RIVER — More than 400 visitors from many different countries have visited the new Gold River secondary school since last March to study the ultra-modern features incorporated in its design.

The school was one of three from the Island selected for display in the National Exhibition of School Architecture in Toronto in January.

Dick Kosick, Chairman of the Vancouver Island West School Board said he was "proud and flattered" to have the school entered in a national exhibition.

Describing the school, he said, "cost is an important consideration since in future much more classroom space will be required."

Gold River secondary school is constructed of wood and is finished in three-inch tongue and groove siding. The gym is connected to the main building by a covered walkway.

At the entrance to the school there is a patio with a tree in the center and concrete benches placed around. The main building is divided into three segments:

The vocational wing includes shops, home economics, with all the most modern electrical appliances including dishwasher, and commerce rooms.

The other wing contains five classrooms and labs, and science theatre. Four of the five classrooms are expandable and are designed to open into large wide and long rooms, rather than the long narrow rooms which usually result from expanded classrooms.

There are two laboratories. Principal T. G. Ellwood said all the equipment is portable and the counters are built so that students have to stand up and work.

The science audio-visual amphitheatre seats 48 and is equipped at the front with large demonstration table and screen with remote control for the projector.

These two wings are joined by the third segment in the centre of the school. This is the administrative area which includes counselling rooms, resource centre and seminar room. This area is carpeted.

Mr. Ellwood said "we consider the resource centre-library to be the heart of the school. Here we have tried to create an atmosphere conducive to learning." The area is set out as a lounge with tables and chairs for relaxing and reading, surrounded by bookshelves.

There are several individual booths where students can listen to tapes and study undisturbed.

Could you keep up those "easy" monthly payments if your stopped?

What would happen to you and your family if suddenly your regular paycheck was cut off because of a serious accident or an illness? You, like most families, are probably making payments on your house, your car and other things that bring you a comfortable and enjoyable life. Without your regular income could you continue these payments or would there be a severe adjustment in your living standards?

Manufacturers Life can't guarantee that you'll always be able to work. Nobody can. What we can guarantee is that if you are laid-up with an illness or an accident you'll still receive a regular pay cheque. Month after month. Year after year.

Call the Man from Manufacturers. He'll be glad to help you with a plan tailored to your needs. A plan with a guarantee that the protection can be renewed to age 65 and which in the interval cannot be changed or cancelled by the Company, regardless of what happens to your health. The cost is reasonable; and with your family's financial security at stake you just can't afford to be without it.

Fund Fraud Nets Fine

CUMBERLAND—A Cumberland woman who defrauded the Unemployment Insurance Fund of $42 was fined $50 by Magistrate J. Byland in Cumberland Court.

Norrie Diane Galeazzi, 26, pleaded guilty to charges of making false statements concerning her employment. She had claimed to be unemployed over a two-week period during which she had been employed temporarily, evidence showed.

Schools Get 'Extra Help'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—The New Westminster school board said it has arranged for lay personnel to supervise 4,000 elementary school pupils during lunch hours and to supervise traffic safety patrols.

The move came as 120 teachers continued a work-to-rule program protesting the board's refusal to negotiate directly with teachers for a new contract.

This year, the Gilbert's Javelin earned its stripes.

At Sebring and St. Jovite, At Riverside and Watkins Glen, Javelin successfully sorted out some of the toughest courses on the continent in this year's Trans-Am Sedan Racing Series.

We were a little bit impressed with the results of our freshman effort. So was Mr. Gilbert. Enough to make Javelin the new family car. And we think Mrs. Gilbert would be impressed, too. If she knew.

As far as she's concerned, Javelin earned its stripes on the way back from the supermarket. (Javelin is the roomiest car in its class.)

Javelin earned its stripes for visibility. No matter what the driving situation. No matter what the weather. (Javelin is glassier with bigger windows everywhere so it's very easy to see out of.)

Javelin earned stripes in tight parking spots. (It has a very quick steering ratio.) In fact, Javelin earned stripes just about every time someone looked the Gilbert's way. (It looks sleek. Period.)

Why not check out Javelin at the American Motors dealer near you soon? Enjoy handling out some stripes of your own.

Kiernan Meeting 'Useful, Friendly'

The future of Long Beach as a federal park was discussed at a meeting Monday between Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien and recreation minister Kenneth Kiernan.

Mr. Chretien called the meeting "useful and very friendly" but declined to discuss any details of the discussion. "I'm obliged to be quite vague," he said, because it involved "a delicate matter."

Both ministers, he said, now have material to discuss with their respective cabinets.

Mr. Chretien declined to give any estimate of costs or a date when the project might take shape.

Parks legislation requires that provinces acquire the land before development by the federal government develops it. In a park such as the Long Beach proposal, "economic development can be quite important," said Mr. Chretien.

He said that an ocean-side area would be much more difficult to develop than an inland site.

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—If he had to make the decision, work on a federal west coast marine park could start tomorrow, Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien told members of Ucluelet-Tofino Chamber of Commerce Monday.

The minister spoke briefly at a special luncheon at Wickaninnish Inn, following a tour of the proposed park area, arranged by Liberal MP Richard Durante and MLA Dr. Howard McDiarmid.

Mr. Chretien arrived at Port Alberni airport shortly after 9 a.m., accompanied by executive assistant John Rae and Chief Bill Mussel, federal parks officials, and MP David Anderson of Esquimalt-Saanich.

They were joined by Mr. Durante for the 25-minute flight to Tofino, where they were met by Dr. McDiarmid and more than a dozen chamber members.

The group transferred to a helicopter for a close look at both land and sea aspects of the proposed park.

Dr. McDiarmid said, during the luncheon, that his desire to see the creation of a marine park, to preserve the beauty of the west coast for future generations, was one reason he was persuaded to enter the political field.

'NOT NEW'

"The idea of a national park on the west coast is not new, but probably 75 to 100 years old," Dr. McDiarmid said. "However, it was about three years ago that Arthur Laing, then minister, said the federal government was prepared to go ahead."

"It is ironic that the minister from British Columbia was unable to make the necessary arrangements, and that it now lies in the hands of a man from La Belle Province to help us make our dreams of a national park come true."

Mr. Chretien told the chamber, "If the west coast is to have a marine park, the time for action is now, not five or ten years from now."

"With a paved access road, even five years may be too late."

Parks, he said, are not built for the present, but for those who will live 50, 100, or even 200 years from now.

In an interview later, Mr. Chretien said: "We should be men enough to spend a few dollars now so this beautiful area may be preserved for the future."

PARK SITES

The main obstacle the development of the park is that the B.C. government has not acquired all the land needed for the proposed park.

Mr. Durante said: "British Columbia spends only $100,000 yearly in acquiring new park sites. Vancouver spends 10 times that in park upkeep alone."

Dr. McDiarmid presented Mr. Chretien with a framed picture of Long Beach "to keep the project fresh in his mind."

Mr. Chretien also received a large green glass Japanese fishing float and a brick from the fireplace at old Fort Discovery.

WHALING HAT

Mrs. Louise McCarthy, wife of Alice McCarthy of Ucluelet, presented Mr. Chretien with a whaling hat made of woven cedar bark, similar to that worn by Chief Wickaninnish before the white man came to Vancouver Island.

Mrs. Chretien received a shopping bag. Both items were made by Mrs. McCarthy.

Mr. Chretien may soon have another chance to sample Tofino crab.

He and Dr. McDiarmid made a bet on the Grey Cup game. If the west wins, Mr. Chretien will owe Dr. McDiarmid a dozen east coast lobsters. If the east wins, the MLA will ship Mr. Chretien a dozen west coast crabs.

SAME OPPORTUNITIES

Mr. Chretien said he had travelled 20,000 to 25,000 miles a month since July, mostly talking to Indian and Eskimo people.

"I would like the Indian people to participate fully in our society," I would like to see them have the same breaks and opportunities as others," he said.

The great need, he said, is for education — but not only for the Indian people. Non-Indians need to be made aware of the special problems which confront the native people of Canada.

From Indian Convention

Black Beats Retreat

By A. H. MURPHY

Highways Minister Wesley Black retreated Monday from a volley of questions from a woman member of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia.

The minister made his tactical withdrawal from brotherhood's convention in the provincial museum auditorium after a final query by Mrs. Diana Recalma, non-Indian wife of a Quilicum chief.

"That's a behind the eight-ball question. It's a 'when did you stop beating your wife' question, and I will not answer it," Mr. Black said.

'GOOD FAITH'

"I came here in good faith and I'm not going to accept that sort of treatment. I don't know how you are going to get people to speak here if you treat them like that. It's not good public relations," the minister added.

Mrs. Recalma's question dealt with a brief and resolution asking that a bridge be constructed between Kuper and Thetis Islands.

The brief was sent to P. A. Gagliardi when he was highways minister in December, 1967. He didn't even bother to reply, Mrs. Recalma said. It was sent again, this time to Premier Bennett and a "fuzzy" reply was received, she said.

'LIFE-SAVER'

Later, Mrs. Recalma said the bridge would be an inexpensive affair and could save a life.

The distance between the islands was short and almost dry at low tide. At present, all supplies for the all-Indian Kuper Island had to be ferried. If a child was sick on Kuper, and there was no speedboat available, he might well die, she said.

Mrs. Recalma said she had no wish to embarrass the minister or engage in cross-fire with him, but she felt that the question was fair and deserved a reply.

ANOTHER SHOT

Earlier on, she took another shot at Mr. Black when she said that all over the province, road blacktopping stopped at the edges of Indian reservations.

Duncan and Nanaimo were two good examples of what she meant, Mrs. Recalma said.

Why shouldn't Indians have the same roads as others when

Recalma

Mrs. Black countered: "Just what do you mean by that? What's the name of this game?"

I didn't come here to be called a liar."

She said she had no intention of calling Mr. Black a liar or implying it. She just hoped that he would be spared a public retraction.

Later, Mr. Black said he could be wrong on the 50 per cent figure and if so, "I will stand corrected."

TWO VISITS

He said he could not spare more time for the Brotherhood because arrangements for his appearance "had got fouled up." He had been there twice before that day.

He assured the delegates that if they brought their problems to him they would receive his prompt attention.

The convention concludes today with an address by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

Municipal Voting Dec. 7

Gold River Elections 'Instant Town' First

Gold River district, site of the "instant town" of Gold River, will hold its first municipal elections Dec. 7 along with most other communities on the Island.

The town, founded in 1965 to house workers at the Tahsis Company pulp mill nine miles away had its officials appointed by the provincial government until this year.

Three people are in the running for the mayoralty and 12 people are seeking election to six aldermanic seats. (See following nominations list.)

In other Up-Island communities Monday, three municipalities acclaimed mayors including Kay Grouhel of Ladysmith beginning her third term — the second in a row by acclamation.

"I hope this isn't a trend," she said. "I think an election is a good thing."

Fluoridation is on the Dec. 7 ballot in three communities, Alert Bay, Courtenay and Comox.

Hunters Found

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Two Lazear logging road Sunday and later were found by a survey crew Monday about nine miles from where they went into the woods.

Albert Finlay, 26, of Victoria and his brother Grant, 18, of Calgary went along a Mount camp.

Police were told that they spent the night under a tree. They were unable to start a fire because the woods were too damp.

No Injuries

Nanaimo Apartment Guttled by Flames

NANAIMO—An apartment was gutted by fire Monday evening in the Warren Court apartment complex, 151 Wakesalah.

The apartment is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McGrath who were out at the time. Their two children were taken to safety by a baby-sitter. There were no injuries.

The blaze caused major fire damage to an apartment below. However there was extensive smoke and water damage.

The blaze was brought under control by trucks from Harewood and Northfield, and volunteer firemen from Nanaimo.

Mr. McGrath rushed home as soon as he was told about the blaze.

"How's the kids, mother all right?" he asked neighbor Bob Gover as soon as he arrived. Mrs. McGrath had reached the apartment shortly before her husband. Warren Court built this year comprises four main blocks, each containing 16 suites.

Skaters Open New Season

COURTENAY — Comox Valley Figure Skating Club started its 1968-69 season recently with a preliminary test of approximately 150 members taking part in sessions.

The calibre of local skaters has improved visibly over last year it was reported. An official said that those who attended summer school had shown "particularly remarkable advancement."

One skater, Leslie Harris, passed a preliminary test of the Canadian Figure Skating Association at Esquimalt.

The club has been accepted into the association which is they paid gasoline tax, automobile and licence tax and other provincial taxes like other people," she asked.

ROAD COST

Referring to an earlier statement of the minister that the province would pay 50 per cent of the cost of roads through reservations, Mrs. Recalma said:

"You said that if you were wrong on that statement you would make a public denial. I just hope you don't have to do that, Mr. Minister."

Injured Pilot Still Critical

COURTENAY — John Lynn, 32, who was injured when his single-engine plane crashed near Courtenay Saturday, was still in a critical condition Monday according to a Royal Jubilee Hospital spokesman in Victoria.

Hunter Named

GOLD RIVER — A hunter who was injured at Gold River on Saturday has been identified as Paul Elger of Tahsis. Police said he was shot in the knee.

Buck-Passers Rapped On Housing

When an Indian wants help to build a house he runs into a whole chain of buck-passers, members of the Native Brotherhood of B.C. were told Monday.

James Gosnell of Nass River said that a description of how to get financial help was one thing, but actually getting it was another.

"It seems that an Indian has to have half a million dollars to get anything from the government for a house. Believe me, there are very few getting it."

"I wonder if it's because we're Indians that everybody passes the buck to someone else?"

PROFESSIONAL LANGUAGE

"I think there is something behind all this. We receive circulars telling us what to do, and they are written in professional language that nobody understands. We are not professional people. Why don't they write this stuff in terms people understand?" Mr. Gosnell asked.

Mrs. Diana Recalma of Quilicum said she had visited reservations at Alberni and Ucluelet.

On one she found a house, built by a contractor on the orders of the Indian affairs department, standing on green-sloping piles instead of a cement foundation. It was a good, three-bedroom house, and it was sitting on piles sunk in the mud.

On the other she found a house completely jerry-built. It had an inside chimney, switches hidden behind doors, and was a masterpiece of imperfect workmanship.

STEPS TAKEN

Why was this sort of thing allowed to go on? Mrs. Recalma asked.

W. G. Robinson, B.C. roads, sewage and water engineer said he knew of the house, and steps were being taken to correct the situation. The department now had its own inspectors, but it was "still woefully understaffed," he said, and some contractors "were completely unscrupulous."

Brotherhood president Guy R. Williams of Richmond recalled that the federal government had instituted a $12,000,000 program years ago that was going to bring Indian housing in line with the rest in Canada.

SAME STATUS

"It was hailed as the millennium in every paper in Canada. It was going to wipe out the disgrace of years and bring second-class citizens up to the same status as other Canadians."

"What has happened to it? Nothing that I can see. Indian housing is still a disgrace."

"And it will stay that way unless you scream at the top of your voices," Mr. Williams told his audience.

Pedestrian Injured

DUNCAN — David Hilton, 28, 938 West Burnside, is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries after being struck by a hit-and-run car in Duncan Saturday night.

RCMP said he was found lying by the highway at Alsbury Road at 2 a.m.

Indian Leaders Told To 'Take Hold' Now

By A. H. MURPHY
 The problems of the Canadian Indian are so urgent that they must be settled right now, Chief Philip Paul told 75-odd members of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia who are holding their 35th annual convention in Victoria.
 The young leader of the Tsarlip Band at Brentwood Bay crystallized a whole afternoon of discussion on education when he said that while education was a fine thing, native Indians could not wait until administration courses were set up for them and degrees issued.
 "We have to take hold today, not tomorrow," Chief Paul said. "We have leaders, and while they may not have university degrees, they are men of intelligence and ability. It is these men who must lead us."
Abject Poverty
 Asked to comment on the problem of the Indian student dropout, Chief Paul said that one big reason was the fact that some Indian youngsters came from home of abject poverty. They left one world, entered another in school and then returned, and the transition was often just too much for them. The question of poverty just couldn't be divorced from the problem, said the chief, who counsels Indian adults at the Institute of Adult Studies.
 President of the brotherhood, Guy R. Williams of Richmond, spoke of the "dreadful loneliness" suffered by children forced to attend school off the reserve.
Rewards Great
 The rewards of education were great, and the Indian had to have it to survive in this world but he paid dearly for it, Mr. Williams said.
 Principal speaker on Saturday was R. M. Hall, regional superintendent of education for the department of Indian affairs.
 He said the federal government felt that education would be the salvation of the Canadian Indian and that each child should get as much as he could absorb.
 "And, in support of this belief, Ottawa spends $50,000,000 a year on education, $10,000,000 of it in this region, which includes a good part of British Columbia," Mr. Hall said.
 Ottawa was strong for integration in education, and in that respect was looking hard at the possibility of turning education over to the provinces, the speaker added.
 However, integrated schools were not always possible in remote areas, and there it was often necessary to bring the Indian child to the Lower Mainland and have him board out while attending school.
 Mr. Hall agreed that it could be a "pretty terrifying experience" for an eighth grader to be removed from the security of the reservation and thrown into the city life of a centre like Vancouver.
 Although Mr. Hall said the dropout rate was no higher among Indian children than among non-Indians, the delegates, many of them young parents, expressed great concern.
 It was an extremely serious problem, said James Gosnell, of Prince Rupert, and he wanted to know what the government was doing about it.
 Mr. Hall said there were no easy answers to that question. His department was working on the problem, as were all other education authorities, but no one had come up with a solution.
 Regional director for social affairs J. V. Boys told delegates that an across-Canada series of conferences had been completed and that the natives' views would be incorporated in a revised Indian Act.
 The act would be given first reading in the Commons and then widely circulated across the country for further study before it was made law.
 Mayor Hugh Stephen opened the convention Saturday morning. It will continue today, Monday and Tuesday.
Bennett to Speak
 On Monday morning, Premier Bennett is scheduled to speak, along with Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, Highways Minister Wesley Black will speak in the afternoon, along with Minister of Recreation and Conservation Kenneth Kieman.
 At an evening session Monday, the speaker will be Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston.
 Federal Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien will speak to the brotherhood on Tuesday.

'Empress People Should Do It Themselves'

Charman Eyes Council, Blasts Centre Project

City realtor Eric Charman announced Saturday he would be a candidate in the December civic election and came out swinging against the proposal to use public money to assist the CPR in building a convention centre tied in to the Empress Hotel.
 Mr. Charman, unsuccessful Conservative candidate in Victoria in the last federal election, said:
 "I have been talking to a good many people who are opposed to the use of $2,500,000 of public money in building a convention centre. If they feel this way, they should vote for me, for this election is probably the only chance they will have of expressing their opposition."
 "Unlike the other candidates, I would like to say emphatically that I am opposed to this proposal. I would like to suggest that if the Empress Hotel people think it is such a good thing to have a convention centre on their property, they should do what other hotel corporations have done and build it themselves.
 "I cite as an example the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver. They didn't go to the taxpayers of Vancouver and ask them for money to instal the facilities they needed.
 "My proposal is to give the taxpayers of this city a form of referendum which they are obviously going to be denied by the city fathers. I shall make it abundantly clear that a vote for Charman is a vote of disapproval for this particular scheme.
 "I was personally acquainted with Thomas Shanks McPherson as a matter of fact I rented a suite of offices from him, and have been the legacy they now have."
 In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Charman said, "I have sought federal office for this area on two occasions and have been given good support from the voters, although, of course, I was running against the political stream of the day.
 "People have said to me that they wished that I had aldermanic experience, and therefore I am prepared to offer my services.
 "I am particularly concerned about this convention centre proposal, and I will have more to say about this issue in the next few days."

Bystander Knocked Over

Elderly victim of car accident early Saturday was antique lamp standard, knocked over on Douglas at Kings. Car swerved to avoid hitting another and mounted curb; other car disappeared while first car clipped off lamp post and ran down boulevard tree. —(Jim Ryan)

Police Hunt Holdup Trio

A Saanich youth was shot at late Saturday night and his companion was held at knife-point in an attempted hold-up by three men who police described as hippie types.
 A youth who identified himself as Jim Page ran into the Texaco service station at Town and Country shopping centre and told attendants he had been shot at.
 Police said Mr. Page and a friend picked up three others in town and were heading for Elk Lake when two of the assailants pulled a gun and a knife.
 Mr. Page ran from the car and said a shot was fired, and his friend, the driver, was thrown from the car. The trio then took the car. It was found abandoned at Gorge and Garbally.

Undercover Agent Surfaces

Police Sweep Scoops Up 18

By JACK MYERS
 An RCMP undercover agent surfaced Saturday and 18 persons were arrested in Greater Victoria in a series of marijuana and LSD raids by fast-moving police teams.
 Supt. H. F. Law, commander of the RCMP subdivision at Victoria, said those arrested would appear Monday in Central Magistrate's Court charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking.
 He said more arrests were expected during the weekend as 10 more people were being sought in connection with illicit drug marketing. The arrests were believed to be the largest number of the kind in capital city history.
 The arrests, carried out by five teams of four men each, climaxed 22-year-old RCMP undercover agent Mike Onischuk's one year of living as a hippie among the area's flower children.
 Supt. Law said the young agent's first move Saturday when arrests began was to "head for a barber" to rid himself of the long hair and beard cultivated as part of his disguise.
 He said Onischuk had left the area "for a few days of well-earned rest."
 He said the significant thing about Saturday's arrests was that the trafficking aspect was involved rather than simple possession.
 He said the exact source of the drugs was unknown at present but Mexico was prime suspect for the marijuana. The LSD "could have come from any place." He included Canada as "any place."
 Municipal police named by Supt. Law as taking part in the raids and in "aiding in covering Onischuk's activities" during the past year were: Victoria detectives John Markin and Murray MacArthur, and Saanich detective George Denison.
 He said the raids were "a combined effort involving many man-hours from municipal police forces, and the co-operation of Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis who made their policemen available."
 Supt. Law paid tribute to the officers who had the job of covering the undercover agent 24 hours a day.
 He said that he had no names or information on ages and sex of those arrested in the raids, except that four of them were juveniles.
 Asked if the recently reported delay in drug analysis by the Drug Directorate laboratory in Vancouver would have any effect on the cases of those arrested in Saturday's raids, Supt. Law said the analyses "have already been completed."
 He said the work carried out by undercover agent Onischuk was done "under an assumed name." He would not give the name. Other sources indicated the first name was Frank.
 Those arrested were being held in custody at the city police station Saturday night, and the superintendent said arrests were still being made.
 He said co-ordination of all activities in the raids was done by Sgt. Lew Dempsey of the local RCMP subdivision.

North Saanich Mayor Pushes Lagging Fund

Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich made a direct appeal Saturday for residents of the area to push the dragging United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal over the top.
 Receipts to the end of the week were $360,371. This is only 85.6 per cent of the $655,000 goal.
 The campaign has been underway for months and should have been finished weeks ago. But it still lags.
 "Have we all given what we can, rather than what we just thought was enough?" Mayor Cumming asked Saturday. "Maybe that little bit more would close the gap."
 Meanwhile, high school and university students of the area are giving their time to a cleanup campaign.
 Calling themselves the Mod Squad, they have volunteered to do jobs and turn the proceeds over to the United Appeal.
 A phone has been installed by the B.C. Telephone Co. at the Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. — phone 386-2220 — and it is manned from 9 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. by the young people, taking orders for work.
 They had a meeting of teacher and student representatives Friday and this week they'll be shifting into high gear with their plan.
 The idea is to pledge 12 hours a week of work at $1 to $2 an hour. Anyone wishing work done — babysitting, window washing, cleanup, sewing, shopping — is asked to pledge the money to the community chest.
